The Babe and Voltaire.
If the People Knew How.
Deadly Gas? We Need It.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1929.)

AS this is written the Army monoplane Question Mark has been in the air 75 hours, taking supplies of fuel from a smaller plane to feed its three Wright whirlwind motors. The pilots in the 75 hours could have flown from New York to Constantinople.

TWENTY years ago this writer suggested airplanes of the future, gigantic machines going round and round the earth, dropping passengers at Paris, Peking, etc., taking on supplies from smaller planes.

The suggestion was called "ridiculous" then.

Soon it will be reality.

What men can imagine, they can do.

BABE RUTH, weight 234½ pounds, playing handball to reduce, says, "I am thirty-five years old, still have five years to play."

That's the worst of depending on your legs and arms, young gentlemen.

Depend on your brain, and at forty you are just starting.

Goethe wrote the second part of "Faust" at seventy-two, Voltaire was at his best at eighty-although he weighed 129 pounds less than Babe Ruth weighs.

THE Rockefeller Foundation and the Laura Spellman Rockefeller Foundation, established in memory of the late Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, have been consolidated, totaling $264,602,447—more than it cost to build the Panama Canal. It is by far the greatest sum ever set aside for philanthropic purposes.

THE people of this country could set aside ten times as much and not feel it. They haven't the brains to do that and are fortunate in having a Rockefeller family to do it for them.

A GERMAN professor lecturing on the horrors of future war, with deadly gases employed, caused his audience to shed tears. It takes something to make Germans shed tears after the Kaiser's war.

SOME of our people will shed tears also. Those in Washington that have brains enough should find out exactly what gas the professor meant, and get some of it. We need it, not for attack, which is NOT in our line, but for defense, and if necessary for retaliation.

THIS nation should have airships, submarines, fast cruisers, and every possible war device, and say to other nations, "keep away from us, if you are wise. We can destroy you here in America, and destroy you where you live."

IF you like big things this will suit. Thomas B. Campbell of Harding, Mont., "America's largest wheat grower," undertakes the planting of 10,000,000 acres of Russian land with wheat and flax.

PLANTING 10,000,000 acres, under government supervision, would be new. Instead of the government helping the farmer, it would be a case of the farmer helping the government.

The Russian enterprise would call for $100,000,000 worth of American agricultural machinery, interesting to buyers of Harvester stocks.

MORE than 5,000,000 shares of stock sold in Wall Street again yesterday. About 15,000,000 in the first three business days. And "call money" dropped to 6 per cent in spite of bigger brokers' loans.

The professional bear may have to hunt up another "business."

FIRST the Cunard Line, then Japanese steamships decided to run between New York and Havana, taking that profitable thirsty business from American ships.

IT seemed easy, but suddenly our Postoffice stops sending mail on Cunard boats.

That may discourage the foreign idea that Uncle Sam will take anything "lying down."

He gets up quickly when you interfere with his profits.

NEW YORK'S gangsters, annoyed by Police Commissioner Whalen, threaten to go to Chicago.

There they will find an inhospitable police commissioner named Russell. He says, "we will ship them back in nice pine boxes," adding, "a coffin a day will keep the New York thugs away."

DEMOCRATS in the national campaign spent a little more than $5,000,000. Republicans spent a little more than $6,000,000. Republicans got the money and paid their bills. Democrats still owe $1,297,291. Not so easy for losers to collect.

BUILDING COLLAPSES

Three workmen were hurt today and six escaped when this building they were razing at 419-21 East Ohio street, North Side, collapsed.

BUILDING FALLS, 3 MEN HURT

Caught in the collapse of an old brick building at 419-21 East Ohio street, that was being razed, three men were injured today. Six other workmen, showered with debris, escaped injury.

Three workmen taken to Allegheny General Hospital are: "Pink" Gynn, 42, 1213 Bedford avenue, fractured right leg; Nelson Coon, 59, 209 Dasher street, bruised shoulders, and Herman Makela, 40, 416 East Robinson street, who went home after his bruises were dressed.

The building, originally a three-story structure, had been torn down to the ceiling of the first floor. While the men were at work, the walls bulged and the ceiling joists fell on the workmen.

Firemen dug the injured from the ruins and police took them to the hospital. The work of demolition was being done by J. C. Yungo Company, sub-contractors.

Edward Smith, of 5 Musgrave street, was in charge of the work. He heard lost lumber cracking and called to the men to get out of the way, enabling all but those injured to get to safety.

ED SMITH

Ed Smith, 5 Musgrave street, straw boss on the job, shouted a warning of the collapse.

Jock Whitney to Fly Plane to California

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Jock Whitney, son of the late Payne Whitney, is as enthusiastic about aviation as his father was about horses. He hopes to fly to Los Angeles next month. Recently he flew his new machine to Thomasville, Ga., accompanied by Wilmer Stultz and mechanics. He is going to fly it back.

RICKARD SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Tex Rickard is "slightly better this morning, but his condition still is critical," said a bulletin issued shortly before 9 a. m. today by Dr. E. H. Atkins, the physician who operated on the New York promoter last Tuesday for acute gangreneous appendicitis.

Urgent requests for the assistance of Dr. William Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., who is at Havana, Cuba, were sent yesterday by Rickard's physicians. Dr. Mayo was a delegate to the recent medical conference held there.

MAYO TOURING CUBA

El Mundo tonight quoted Dr. Mayo as saying he would not go to Miami. El Mundo located the specialist in Oriente Province with a party of tourists. The newspaper said that in Mayo's opinion Rick.

CRASH QUIZ LEADS TO PLEDGE

Following testimony of Pittsburgh Railways Company officials and employes that tracks laid in 1898 are still in use on the old McKeesport and Riverton line, announcement was made today by General Manager T. J. Fitzgerald, of the railways company, and L. F. Savage, city engineer of McKeesport, that more than a mile of new rails would be laid and the street would be repaved in Fifth avenue, McKeesport.

Attention to the alleged dangerous condition of the track was called in the statements of witnesses yesterday at the inquest into the death of Verna Loveall, 15, of McKeesport, killed in a trolley accident on Christmas Eve when 17 other persons were seriously injured. The crash occurred when two cars came together as the result of the derailment of one of the cars caused by the spreading of the rails on a section of track laid more than 30 years ago.

COMMISSION TO ACT

At the same time members of the City Transit Commission are ready to recommend similar action toward the rehabilitation of the tracks, according to the statement of David L. Starr, a member of the board. In cases where complaints are made against the condition of the tracks, he said, the matter would be given prompt attention by the commission.

"The City of McKeesport is chiefly concerned about the elimination of hazards to traffic caused by holes in the pavement between the car tracks in eastern sections of Fifth avenue," said City Engineer Savage, "and our public works program calls for the repaving of the thoroughfare from Evans avenue to Hardy's Bridge, a distance of a mile. The railways company is required to pave between the tracks. The work will be undertaken early in the spring."

"The Pittsburgh Railways Company is ready to install new rails as soon as the City of McKeesport is ready to begin the improvement," said Fitzgerald. "In the last four years we have laid more than four miles of track and spent $225,000 on our lines in McKeesport."

Victim of 'Hit-Run' Found Dead in Road

The victim of a "hit-and-run" motorist, an unidentified man was found dead early today in the River road, Elizabeth, near Lock No. 3. The body was taken to the morgue, where efforts are being made to have it identified. A man employed at the lock nearby noticed the body about 3 o'clock and called the morgue.

Sun-Telegraph to Tell Story of Nobile

Gen. Umberto Nobile has broken the silence which for almost a year has been his only answer to the calumny that greeted him when he returned from his ill-fated expedition to the North Pole in the dirigible Italia.

Tomorrow, in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, the first installment of that story, his own story, will be published.

It is a tale of high hopes turned to stark and bitter tragedy; of the tiny strength of men pitted against the elements at their worst; of suffering and gallant self-effacement; of death, and of the greater tragedy of being misunderstood. It is a grim tale, well-told, in ardent style.

It begins in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph tomorrow. Each subsequent day an installment will be published, until the conclusion.

Flier Takes Ride In Elevator on Day Off

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Pete Branson flies over the Woolworth Building daily in carrying mail betwen New York and Washington. He had a day off recently. He devoted most of it to a visit to the top of the Woolworth Building in the layman's manner, by elevator and stairs. "I got a big thrill," he said. It's different when you go up in an elevator. You have more time to look around."

VALOTTA, SAVED 11 TIMES FROM CHAIR, DIES

Joseph Valotta died today in Western Penitentiary.

Pneumonia claimed the life of the man who escaped the electric chair after a spectacular fight which was carried to the United States Supreme Court and whose sentence was commuted to life imprisonment by former Gov. Gifford Pinchot after 11 respites from the chair.

Convicted of shooting to death Patrolman Edward Couch and Thomas Hopkins on the North Side, October 30, 1922, Valotta was sentenced to die June 28, 1923.

FOUGHT ON TECHNICALITY

Valotta was tried and convicted of the double slaying at the same time. This raised a question of violation of his constitutional rights in being tried for both murders at the same time.

Federal Judge W. H. S. Thomson set aside Valotta's conviction as unconstitutional, but the United States Supreme Court, to which the battle was carried, found against the condemned man.

MANY COME TO AID

Many prominent persons, including Mayor Charles H. Kline, urged a pardon for Valotta.

Mrs. Couch, widow of the slain patrolman, protested commutation.

Valotta, an employe of the Pennsylvania Railroad, always contended he shot in self-defense, thinking the two men he killed were about to attack him. The shooting occurred on a dark foggy night.

ACTION IN VARE CASE SPEEDED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—An end to the long dipute over the right of Senator-elect William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, to take his seat in the Senate appeared in sight today.

The Reed special committee which investigated charges that Vare spent too much money in the Pennsylvania 1926 senatorial primaries decreed if he is too ill to appear to present his claims or to confer with his attorneys concerning the case, his attorneys must prepare the case and present it.

Vare himself is convalescing in Florida from a paralytic stroke suffered in August, 1928. His representatives testified he was too ill either to confer with them or to appear himself.

No date for the hearing has been set, but if this is to be done by the committee it must be within two months, as the Reed committee goes out of existence with the end of the present session of Congress.

Gibraltar Straits Tunnel Approved

MADRID, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—A commission appointed to study the possibility of building a railway tunnel under the Strait of Gibraltar has returned with a favorable report. The cost of the tunnel was estimated at $48,000,000. The tunnel would be 20 miles long. The tunnel would start from Torrepena, a town located six kilometers west from Tarifa.

2 HANGINGS WAIT NEW RULING

FRANKLIN, La., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—The scheduled hanging of Mrs. Ada Bonner Lebouef and Dr. Thomas E. Dreher became still more confused today when Gov. Huey P. Long announced at Baton Rouge that he had canceled his instructions to Sheriff Charles Pecot not to proceed with the executions.

"I have asked the State Supreme Court for instructions in the matter," the Governor said. "I have directed the sheriff to disregard my previous orders."

SHERIFF UNDECIDED

Sheriff Pecot said today, when informed of the Governor's statement, that he had not decided whether to proceed with the hanging later today as originally ordered.

"I am awaiting further instructions from the Governor and the Supreme Court," he announced.

OFFICIALS IN BREAK

This is the third rift to occur in the Lebouef-Dreher case. Two days ago Gov. Long refused clemency to the pair after a favorable recommendation from the pardon board. The refusal caused the open and dramatic break between the governor and Paul N. Cyr, lieutenant governor and a member of the board, who charged publicly that the governor "deliberately double-crossed me."

Gov. Long scouted any other claim in the Lebouef case than "cold blooded murder" after his review of the records.

A determined fight was made here

SNOW AND COLD SNAP COMING

Rain or snow is expected tonight when a drop in temperature will be noticed here and colder weather is on the program for tomorrow, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said this morning. Today will be slightly warmer than yesterday but the change probably will occur late this evening.

The snow fall in Pittsburgh since the cold weather arrived has been very slight, only 1.4 inches falling during November and December, the weather bureau records show. Most of this snow fell during a five-day period early in November.

Blizzard Raging In Central Iowa

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 5.—(INS.)—A raging blizzard was sweeping Central Iowa today. Snow was falling in virtually all other sections of the state.

In Des Moines street car traffic was at a standstill. Hundreds of automobiles were stalled in drifts piled almost top high. At Dubuque there was six inches of snow.

A howling blizzard followed 18 hours of snow in Kansas City. Heavy snow also was reported elsewhere in the West and Southwest.

DR. THOMAS E. DREHER

Scheduled to die today, Mrs. Ada Bonner Lebouef and Dr. Thomas E. Dreher, convicted of conspiracy in the death of Mrs. Lebouef's husband, don't know whether they'll go to the gallows today. Gov. Long, granting a reprieve early this morning, has withdrawn it.

PFARR PROBING ARSON PLOTS

Fire Marshall Thomas L. Pfarr was investigating two suspected arson plots, in East Pittsburgh and Braddock today and said he expected at least one arrest before nightfall.

Pfarr was confident he was in a position to apprehend the person who, he said, tried to fire the three-story building and apartment house at 215 Electric avenue, East Pittsburgh, Thursday.

Five empty gasoline cans and gasoline-soaked floors were found in a three-story building used by the New York Bottling Works at Ninth street and Talbot avenue, Braddock. The fire, early today, was extinguished with $150 damage.

Mercer's "Marrying 'Squire" Weds 74

MERCER, Pa., Jan. 5.—While he failed to have a normal year, Justice T. W. McClain, of Mercer, retained his title as "marrying 'squire" of Mercer county when he performed 74 ceremonies in 1928. Justice McClain usually has 100 marriages annually.

FIND BONE ASHES IN ARNOLD YARD

ORRVILLE, O., Jan. 5.—Prosecutor Walter J. Mougey today felt certain he had solved the disappearance of 4-year-old Melvin Horst and that the solution indicated the boy had been burned to death.

Mougey said that what appeared to be ashes of human bones had been found in the home of Elias Arnold, who is being held in the mystery along with four other members of his family.

FOUR SUSPECTS HELD

The prosecutor said he would turn the ashes over to the chemistry department at Wooster College for analysis.

Held in $10,000 bail, which he was unable to furnish, Arnold was in jail with a daughter, Dorothy Arnold McHenry; two sons, Arthur and William, and a son-in-law, Bascom McHenry, when the ashes were found.

The Horst boy, a nephew of Marshall Roy Horst, disappeared nine days ago. The five prisoners, detectives said, all admitted their dislike of Marshall Horst, who arrested them several times on liquor charges, the authorities said.

PLAYMATE GIVES CLUE

The testimony of a playmate of the missing boy was regarded as more important than ever with today's developments.

Young Junior Hanna said the last he saw of Melvin Horst was on the day of his disappearance when he noticed him in the rear of the Arnold home with two of the suspects, Arthur Arnold and Bascom McHenry. An hour earlier Arnold had told him he wanted to see Melvin, young Hanna said.

The Horst and Arnold homes are in the same neighborhood. Melvin and Junior Hanna were playing in a nearby field in late afternoon when Arthur Arnold approached Hanna, Junior declared, and asked him to tell Melvin he was wanted at the Arnold home.

Young Hanna said he forgot to relay the message and was not reminded of it until, going home, he saw Melvin in an alley in the rear of the Arnold home and, a minute later, saw Arthur Arnold and McHenry going in the same direction.

The Hanna boy is a nephew of Elias Arnold and is being held as a material witness. The prosecutor said he would bring the boy before the grand jury next week to repeat his story.

AIRPLANE NEARS 100-HR. MARK

METROPOLITAN AIRPORT, Los Angeles, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—The fifth day of the army monoplane, Question Mark's endurance flight began at 10:26 o'clock (Pittsburgh time) this morning. The plane at that time was reported to be in "excellent condition" in spite of the 96 hours it had been in the air.

Becoming in reality a question mark of the skies as it soared toward dirigible records after dropping all existing airplane endurance records from the air, the tri-motored Fokker still held back the solution of whether, given unlimited fuel and supplies, men or motors would crack first in continuous flight.

The Question Mark has eclipsed all heavier-than-air records, and is close upon the heels of lighter-than-air craft.

'Real Canadian' Rum Just 'Prune Whisky'

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Thousands of dollars worth of "prune whisky" was dispensed to New Year's Eve revellers in Detroit and Buffalo from bottles bearing the forged labels of well-known distilleries, and sealed with Ontario liquor control board stamps. This information has been obtained by Ontario liquor board investigators.

BOTTLE NOTE REVEALS NEW "ROBINSON CRUSOE"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Government agencies are trying to establish the identity of one Cranston Marshall, who, in a note found in a bottle on the German coast, says he is marooned on a remote island and with only wild goats for companions.

This somewhat unusual "bottle mystery" is receiving more than ordinary credence because the German embassy has handed the State Department a formal note asking that this government try to obtain some information regarding the sender of the message.

The note was deciphered as follows:

"Help, help! I, Cranston Marshall, am on an island 45 degrees latitude, 60 degrees longitude. Only wild goats and (?) to eat."

The writer failed to designate compass points in stating longitude and latitude. The Navy Department said there were two of four positions in which the island might be located. One is 60 miles east of Nova Scotia. The other is 300 miles from the Gulf of St. Lawrence, off the coast of the Argentine. Small unnamed islands are found on the chart there. The other two points on the compass are inland.

MELLON DENIES BUYING 'MADONNA' BY RAPHAEL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon denied today a story printed in the London Daily Mail that he had purchased Raphael's "Cowper Madonna" for a price of nearly $1,000,000.

"The story is untrue," said the secretary.

The Daily Mail story said the painting was sold to Secretary Mellon by Sir Joseph Duveen. Sir Joseph had purchased it from Lady Desborough for $375,000, which at the time, eight months ago, was a record price for a single picture.

Lady Desborough acquired the masterpiece upon the death of the Earl of Cowper, whose ancestor, the third Earl of Cowper, smuggled it out of Florence in the lining of his coach about 1780. The picture bears Raphael's signature and is dated 1508.

RUSH WORK ON N. S. RUM CASES

United States attorneys and attaches of the prohibition headquarters staff were busy until an early hour this morning going over testimony of the recent North Side rum ring trials in preparation for submission of evidence for the grand jury that is expected to hand down new indictments in the case. The November grand jury was ordered recalled and will begin work Monday morning.

Forty-eight of the 50 subpenas issued Thursday for North Side witnesses have already been served and the amount of work being done at the Federal Building indicates a plan to have the indictments returned as soon as possible.

Seventy-three North Side residents named in one conspiracy indictment were acquitted after one or two had pleaded guilty. In ordering their acquittal the court said that while there was no evidence of one large conspiracy, there seemed to have been many smaller ones. Immediately after the trial government attorneys began plans to have the defendants reindicted.

Those named in the North Side conspiracy charge were among the 187 indicted several months ago after the grand jury had spent weeks investigating rum rings in the city. There were similar groups from the South Side, "Strip" and East End.

There may be some delay in summoning the grand jury members for duty Monday because of illness. Of the 26 members originally selected for the jury, one has died and four others have been excused. This leaves but 18 eligible for duty. The law requires the attendance of 16 members for a quorum, and if there are three members ill, the court probably will have to send the others home for a time.

CORPORATE TAX RULE ISSUED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Secretary Mellon yesterday promulgated a regulation to govern the filing of the 1929 consolidated tax returns of affiliated corporations, in which it was announced that the Treasury would deal with the parent concern. The preparation of the new regulation was made necessary through terms of the 1928 revenue act.

Under the regulation, the net income of the affiliated group would be the net income of the separate corporations, with necessary eliminations to prevent recognition of or loss upon purely inter-company transactions. The regulation is designed to prevent a second allowance of loss.

Miss Earhart Guest On Porto Rico Plane

HAVANA, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—A regular pilot of the Pan-American Airways, Inc., will pilot the Christopher Columbus, next Wednesday when it begins service from Miami, Fla., to San Juan, Porto Rico, by way of this city. The fact that Miss Amelia Earhart, the first woman to cross the Atlantic by air, is to be a passenger on the flight led to a report that she would take the controls. It was said last night that she was making the trip solely as a private observer.

One Florida Boy Whose Bubble Proved Real

UMATILLA, Fla., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Hunters, put your guns aside and list to the tale of 13-year-old Robert Maxwell.

Robert, armed with his trusty .22 caliber rifle, left home on a hunting expedition. A short time later he came back, out of breath, with the information that he had shot two deer.

He was warned that little boys his age should always tell the truth if they want to go to heaven.

Upon his insistence, however, a member of the family accompanied him to the scene of his hunt. There lay two buck deer, a few yards apart. Robert had bagged them with two shots.

TWO COOLIDGE SPEECHES SET

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Two public addresses are now contemplated by President Coolidge; the first at the business meeting of the government on January 28, and the second in Florida on February 1, when he will dedicate a bird sanctuary established by Edward W. Bok.

Mr. Coolidge, however, is extremely doubtful that he will be able to accept an invitation to speak in Vincennes, Ind., at a celebration commemorating the battle fought there by Colonial troops under George Rogers Clark. The President plans to make his Florida trip a brief one, stopping off for the speech and returning immediately to Washington.

STAY HALTS HANGING OF COUPLE

yesterday by defense attorneys to save the lives of their clients on the grounds of insanity, but Judge James D. Simon ruled that the woman and physician are sane and refused to appoint a lunacy commission.

RUSH TO HIGH COURT

After the hearing the attorneys sped by automobile to New Orleans where they appeared before five members of the Supreme Court in an attempt to obtain a stay of execution and compel Judge Simon to show cause why he should not appoint a lunacy commission.

The hearing over, four associate justices announced that the writs were denied and Associate Justice Brunot instructed the sheriff by telephone to proceed with the execution.

"Let me talk to the sheriff," Chief Justice O'Neill interposed.

ORDERS HANGINGS STAYED

"Don't execute those people tomorrow," he shouted through the telephone to the sheriff. "One judge has the right to issue the writs and as chief justice of this court I order that the executions be stayed."

Chief Justice O'Neill contended he was empowered by the state constitution to prevent the hangings while the four dissenting justices held that as a majority of the court their decision was final.

In granting the stay of execution, Chief Justice O'Neill ordered Judge Simon and Sheriff Necot to appear before the Supreme Court next Friday and show cause why the lunacy commission should not be appointed.

Lebouef was slain July 1, 1927. Mrs. Lebouef and Dr. Dreher were arrested and found guilty of the crime, along with James Beadle, Morgan City trapper, who drew a life sentence which he is serving.

Dr. Dreher contended at the trial that Beadle fired the fatal shots while Beadle blamed the physician. The state claimed that a love affair between Mrs. Lebouef and Dr. Dreher was the motive and that they conspired to slay the woman's husband.

The body was found in Lake Palourde, weighted down with Angle irons.

LIVINGSTON DECISION MONDAY

Decision on a proposal to exempt Murray G. Livingston's former job of chief inspector of weights and measures from control of the Civil Service Commission will not be announced until next Monday.

Livingston, after 28 years in the city's employ, was discharged about two weeks ago by Mayor Charles H. Kline "for the good of the service" and has an appeal pending before the Civil Service Commission.

Attorney Charles B. Prichard, representing Livingston, protested the exemption proposal at a public hearing before the commission yesterday and asked that action be delayed.

TACTICAL ERROR SEEN

Political observers seemed agreed that the commission made a tactical error in not disposing of Livingston's appeal before attempting to put his former job at the mercy of the Mayor's whim.

A spectator who identified herself as Mrs. Alice Bitler, 4301 Murray avenue, Fifteenth Ward, caused a mild sensation at yesterday's hearing by favoring the exemption proposal. It was first believed she was in sympathy with Livingston and would object to the change.

Prichard's appearance as counsel for Livingston was taken as further indication of the widening breach between Mayor Kline and certain of his former political associates.

Prichard was director of public safety and later city solicitor in the administration of former Mayor and present County Commissioner Edward V. Babcock. Prichard generally is considered friendly to State Senator M. G. Leslie.

Livingston's discharge followed closely the reinstatement of A. L. Nolan, inspector of weights and measures, by orders of the Civil Service Commission. Livingston had testified before the commission that Nolan was discharged by Mayor Kline for political reasons.

CITES RECORD

Prichard defended Livingston as a "loyal, faithful and efficient employe of the city, against whom no criticism had been directed previous to his discharge." A change at this time "would be arbitrary and would operate unfairly and prejudicially against Livingston and to every other person under civil service regulations," Prichard averred.

Prichard said he believed he was voicing the protest of a "great many individuals and business interests," and asked that action on the exemption proposal be deferred until the commission reached a decision on Livingston's appeal from the Mayor's discharge order.

The commission was represented by its three members, Dr. F. H. Frederick, chairman; Dr. F. C. Blessing, and Attorney J. Howard Devlin; Secretary James C. Smith, and Attorney William J. Connelly, assistant city solicitor.

HOOVER READY FOR CABINET BUILDING

U. S. S. UTAH, EN ROUTE TO HAMPTON ROADS, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Herbert Hoover faced this, his last day at sea, anxious to get to Washington to tackle the next big job ahead—that of selecting his official family.

He plans to start right in with a series of conferences with party leaders over the country and especially those men who were foremost in his counsels during the campaign. He is hopeful that he can get through in a week in order to be able to go to Florida for recreation and fishing, with perhaps later a whirlwind tour of the West Indies, including Cuba, Haiti, Santo Domingo and Porto Rico.

The last few days at sea the Utah encounter ' choppy seas, with more rough water in prospect for today as the ship nears Cape Hatteras. The Utah will probably arrive at Hampton Roads, Sunday, an hour or two ahead of the scheduled time, 8. a. m., unless fog is encountered off the Virginia coast.

As a memento of the homeward trip, Mr. and Mrs. Hoover have received a pair of brass candlesticks and brass bonbon trays designed and made in the ship's shop. The presentation was without ceremony, Capt. Train handing the gifts to Mr. and Mrs. Hoover in their suite. Mr. Hoover gave the Utah ward-room officers an autographed photograph of himself.

Berlin Broadcasts U. S. Composer's Jazz Sonata

BERLIN, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—The world premier of a nine-minute Jazz Sonata for the piano, written by George Antheil, of Trenton, N. J., especially for the radio, was given through the government broadcasting station last night.

At the same hour his incidental music written for the performance at the Staats Theater of "Oedipus Rex" also had its premiere, and was so effective as to win generous applause from a capacity house.

This was said to be the first time that an American composer had been commissioned by the Prussian state to write music.

Donovan, the assistant to the attorney general, has been asked by the Senate lands committee to appear before it today at a renewal of the inquiry into the Sinclair contract for Salt Creek royalty oil which was declared void last fall by the Department of Justice.

CITY LOSING SUN RAYS IN HAZE

Improvement of health in Pittsburgh through elimination of the smoke nuisance will be the principal object of the new investigation of air pollution to be made by the Mellon Institute, Dr. E. W. Tillotson, assistant director, disclosed today. Special attention will be given to the interception of the sun's health-giving ultra-violet rays by the city's hazy atmosphere.

As in the investigations of 1913-1913 and 1923-24, many phases of the smoke problem will be studied—the economic cost of the nuisance, the effect of smoke on building materials, the effect on vegetation, and its engineering, meteorological and psychological aspects. But the effect on health is to be the dominant subject of inquiry, to which all else will be subordinate.

A fellowship has been created with one fellow who will devote his entire time to the study, Dr. Tillotson said. He will have the co-operation of numerous assistants, some of whom may later drop all else for the smoke investigation. It is expected that the scope of the survey will widen as researches open up new fields of inquiry.

MORE SMOKE, MORE COLDS

In the institute's earlier survey the health aspect of the local smoke problem was investigated by Drs. W. C. White, B. A. Cohoe, Oskar Klotz, W. L. Holman and Samuel R. Haythorne, among others.

They agreed, to quote Dr. White, that "smoke has a tremendous influence in increasing the incident severity and mortality of acute diseases of the air passages. It would appear that this increased susceptibility is, in part, the result of the lowering of our natural body resistance. In simple terms, the smokier the atmosphere, the more the colds and bronchitis, and the more money paid the doctors."

The physicians found, on the other hand, that if smoke had an influence in tuberculosis, it was not a harmful one.

Dr. Cohoe found that "quite apart from any mooted question as to the ultimate effect on health, the citizens of Pittsburgh have, for many decades, been keenly alive to the bodily discomfort resulting from the omnipresent smoke pall in the community. As early as 1804, Gen. Neville, the then burgess of Pittsburgh, is quoted as having stated with reference to the smoke nuisance, that 'not only the comfort, health and, in some measure, the consequence of the place, but the peace and harmony of the inhabitants depend upon speedy measures being adopted to remedy the nuisance.'"

Dr. Cohoe found, however, that "Pittsburgh fares no more ill than many of the large industrial centers of the world with respect to the smoke evil."

SUN RAYS NEEDED

The investigations of the physicians quoted and their associates, while far-reaching, and tending to show a direct relationship between smoke and Pittsburgh's high pneumonia rate, did not cover certain branches of medical science that have been brought to the fore by recent discoveries. They did not go, for example, into the question of the relationship between smoke and the effect on health resulting from man being deprived of sunlight.

The Mellon Institute will make an exhaustive investigation of that aspect of the subject. Pittsburgh is not getting its fair share of ultra-violet rays. The institute has instruments to determine the density of the smoke in the air by measuring the amount of ultra-violet rays that pierce it. Much field work will be done, as well as laboratory work, in pursuance of this phase of the inquiry.

Wife Asks Freedom From Jobless Mate

SMOKE PERISCOPE

HARRY B. MELLER DEMONSTRATES SMOKE PERISCOPE

Harry B. Meller, chief of the Bureau of Smoke Regulation, here demonstrates a periscope which permits firemen and engineers to see at a glance if they have dense smoke forbidden by ordinance. Into one opening in the chimney a tube equipped with an electric light is fitted, into another opposite a tube with a mirror and ground glass. The light passes through the stack to the mirror and is deflected to the ground glass, visible to the firemen. When dense smoke is going up the chimney the light from the electric lamp cannot pass through to the ground glass. All mills and power plants are required to install the periscope.

TREASURY URGES PAYING U. S. STEEL 26 MILLIONS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—The Treasury advocates the return of $26,000,000 in taxes to the United States Steel Corporation, and it opposes the resolution proposing that the government give 26 states $200,000,000 in taxes alleged to have been illegally collected from 1866 to 1868.

This and the fact that the House Appropriations Committee approved $75,000,00 items for tax refunds in the first deficiency bill were the principal developments yesterday when the question of tax refunds bobbed up from two sources. The approval of the " n in the deficiency bill came after an unsuccessful fight by Representative Garner, of Texas, to launch an investigation of tax refund settlements.

Assistant Secretary Bond of the Treasury, in testifying before the appropriations committee said that the settlement with the United States Steel Corporation, if accepted, would be in lieu of a claim for $101,000,000 made by the corporation. The hearing before the appropriation committee also disclosed that the treasury since 1917 had collected $4,061,769,209 in back taxes, but that it had refunded in that time $975,012,356.

On opposing the claim by the states for $200,000,000 in direct taxes, Secretary Mellon in a letter to the committee said that several hundred millions of dollars would be needed to settle all claims for illegally collected direct taxes since 1868 and that it was doubtful if any accurate record of the claims by the states could be produced.

GARNER ATTACKS MELLON

Senator Stephens, of Mississippi, one of the leaders in the fight for refunding, said the states had been treated unjustly and argued that the government should pay the debt.

Representative Garner, in seeking an investigation of tax refunds, criticized the Treasury for its settlements of tax refunds claimed by the Aluminum Company of America. Garner said that in 1921 the company got a refund of $621,000 and a credit of $665,000.

"I do not know who owns the Aluminum Company of America," he declared, "but if the Secretary of the Treasury did own it and his own company made a report in 1917 that it owed that much taxes, and he comes along in 1928 under the general provisions of law that you can settle as you please, regardless of the law, and gives them back $1,286,000, somebody ought to look into it.

"Refuse to appropriate this money," he continued, referring to the $75,000,000, "and let the Treasury understand that your organization understands that we are going to investigate the Treasury Department and the question of the justice and merits of these claims."

KING GEORGE IMPROVES

By HARRY R. FLORY,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—King George's condition continued to show no appreciable change today, Buckingham Palace officials declared.

It was unofficially stated that, although His Majesty was slightly restless early last night, he became more comfortable after midnight and slept naturally.

The King's wound is now practically healed, according to authoritative sources. This is regarded as a good omen, since a wound cannot heal without the necessary vitality in the patient.

The announcement that the Duke of York and the Duke of Gloucester would go to Sandringham Monday unless His Majesty's condition became worse was regarded as a further indication that His Majesty was in as satisfactory a condition as could be expected at this time.

Urges Legislature Set Driving Age at 21

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—With 335 deaths by automobile accident in Philadelphia last year, the largest in the city's history, Coroner Fred Schwarz, Jr., yesterday announced he would appeal to the State Legislature, to enact laws to prevent what he considers the causes of many mishaps.

He said he would ask the Legislature to require all owners and drivers of motor cars to carry accident insurance and raise the age limit for drivers' licenses from 16 to 21 years. Such legislation, the coroner said, would not stop fatal accidents, but it would have a tendency towards such an end.

MEXICAN REBEL BAND SHOT

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Special dispatches from Aguas Calientes last night said that the execution of 11 insurgents yesterday had been carried out only after a formal court martial, in accordance with recent instructions of President Portes Gil that none should be executed without trial.

Natalio or Militon Espinosa and his 10 followers were shot by a firing squad and then their bodies were suspended from telegraph poles along the railroad which they were alleged to have molested on frequent occasions.

OPPOSITION TO PACT GROWS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Firmly established before the Senate with all the assurances at the command of its sponsor, Senator Borah, of Idaho, the Kellogg peace pact was a target today for the opposition and the doubtful.

Signs of doubt developed in the debate yesterday as Senator Borah concluded his two days' argument for the pact, but the attack being fostered by Senator Reed (Dem.), Missouri, awaited the conclusion of Borah's exposition.

Frankly admitting that he did not look for "the dawn of the millenium" in the ratification of the pact, the Idaho Senator denied that the treaty pledging the nations of the world to renounce war could infringe in any way upon America's asserted right to guard against foreign encroachments in this hemisphere and, therefore, he said, no reservation was required to protect the Monroe Doctrine. He denied that the signatories could be called upon to exert force against an offending nation.

Christmas Seal Accounting Asked

A last call to persons who received tuberculosis Christmas seals by mail was issued today by George R. Jackson, manager of the Christmas seal sale. "While the sale as a whole is an unqualified success," says Mr. Jackson, "thousands of seals still remain unaccounted for, because some people have failed to return either the money or any undesired seals in the envelope which bears their account number. We cannot close our books until returns are made on these." Christmas seal contributors and the general public are invited to a large reception on Tuesday between 3 and 9 p. m., which marks the opening of the new hospital building at 2851 Bedford avenue.

VICE SUSPECTS ASK HEARING

Hearings before Alderman Thomas Jones, of the South Side, will be asked by a large number of the 46 persons named in informations sworn out by District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner as a result of the grand jury vice probe, it was revealed by Jones today. This will give the defense counsel an opportunity to determine what evidence will be used in court against their clients.

It was first believed most of the defendants would waive hearing for court trial. Eleven appeared yesterday before Jones and posted bond, asking they be given a hearing. The others decided to waive hearing.

Among those who are to fight the charge before Alderman Jones are Elliott Donnelly, North Side politician, charged with conspiracy to violate the Snyder act, and George Connelly, Joseph Frank and Bernard Loeffler, who face similar charges.

Stillman's monoplane North Star in its hangar here yesterday and released 120 gallons of gasoline. Oliver Le Boutillier, pilot, who plans to fly the plane non-stop to the Canal Zone, and four mechanics, ran from the building in fear the fumes would ignite from a coal stove in the hangar office. Later the gasoline, more than an inch deep on the hangar floor, was swept out onto the field and all smoking was forbidden until it could evaporate.

MILLIONS OF FLU GERMS STOLEN

LONDON, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—A thief who stole several tubes containing millions of influenza germs was at large today. The tubes were left in an automobile by Dr. W. M. Crofton, bacteriologist, when he entered his club and were stolen.

The physician said that if the tubes were broken in a sheltered place there was undoubtedly danger of an epidemic. If they were broken in the open air the cold would probably kill the germs.

There has been a series of raids on physicians' automobiles in the last few months. It was thought narcotics were being sought, but it is now believed the thefts were the work of a gang which has special means of disposing of medical equipment.

NORTHCOTT MAY YET GET SANITY TEST; BOARD NAMED

COURT ROOM, RIVERSIDE, Cal., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—The question of Gordon Stewart Northcott's sanity may yet become an issue in his trial here on a charge of murdering three boys on his Wineville chicken ranch.

This was indicated when Superior Judge George R. Freeman, who is hearing the case, named three members of a commission to examine Northcott with respect to his mental responsibility in the event evidence should develop a need for it.

Dr. Edson Steele and Dr. M. G. Carter of Los Angeles and Dr. G. M. Webster of Patton, Cal., were the physicians appointed to the commission. A pathologist and a biochemist are to be appointed later, the judge indicated, to examine bones, hair and other evidence to be introduced at the trial.

Appointment of the examiners was made over the protest of Special Prosecutor Loyal C. Kelly. From the bench Judge Freeman said he believed Northcott is sane but that he was appointing the commission as a precautionary measure and because he believed the defendant entitled to have such matters looked into by a competent authority.

Naming of the commission interrupted temporarily the selection of a jury.

HAVANA, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—The Cuban sugar industry is in the depths, and the future presents a grave aspect, Col. Jose Tarafa, father of the Tarafa sugar curtailment act, said yesterday in his first interview since his return from Europe. The former czar of the Cuban sugar bowl suggested that the future could be established not through marketing of refined sugar, but through utilization of by-products in the manufacture of commercial alcohol, syrups, cellulose and similar commodities.

They will bring some old friends and some new acquaintances. Among them will be Thurston, a modern Merlin (of course you know Merlin was King Arthur's Wizard); Claiborne Foster, whom we liked in "Applesauce"; Will Fyffe, comedian; Lon Chaney, who is said to be a human being despite screen evidence to the contrary; Clara Bow, who went "Down to the Sea In Ships" and captured a cargo of enduring popularity, and Emil Jannings, born in Brooklyn, reared in Germany and returned to his native land unable to speak its language, but now one of our greatest film actors.

"Music in May" completes its Pittsburgh engagement in the Alvin with this afternoon and tonight's performances.

Monday night, Thurston, the magician, will open his engagement in the Shubert Pitt. There will be matinees Thursday and Saturday. Jane Thurston is co-starring with her magician father for the first time this season, as a singing and dancing comedienne. In addition to her own specialties, she does a joint magic act with her dad.

TWO BLACK CROWS TO MAKE TALKING FILMS OF FEATURE LENGTH

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1929, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 5.

MORAN AND MACK, the "Two Black Crows," have always stated a dozen reasons why they should not come into the movies. But it seems that Jesse L. Lasky, of Paramount, knew a better one why they should. Just how amazing an array of figures followed the dollar sign of reason is not stated. But the "Two Black Crows" are signed, sealed and delivered to make the talkies for Paramount.

Each of these will be a feature-length picture, and each will be produced on the Lasky lot in Hollywood. There are several vehicles under consideration for the team. But no definite decision will be made on stories, cast or director until the stars arrive in Hollywood a few weeks hence. The pictures will be produced immediately upon completion of Paramount's sound stages.

Another stage player to succumb to the lure of celluloid gold is Dorothy Jordan. Dorothy has just blown into town with a Fox contract in her traveling bag, and is reported in a huddle with studio executives regarding story material. They say New York tests have proved that she has an ideal movietone voice.

Von Sternberg On "Night Court"

JOSEF VON STERNBERG is not to direct the spiritualistic yarn, "Darkened Rooms," after all. His next will be "Night Court." The title seems to indicate that the flair for crime and underworld stories has not yet lost its vogue. Thus far, Gustav Von Seyffertitz is the only one in the cast.

As a team, Director Edward H. Griffith and his star, Rod La Rocque, have proved themselves a great success. Now comes word that it is all set for "E. H." to direct Rod in a super-super for one of the best organizations in Hollywood. Both men are at present among the free-lancers, and they apparently plan to stick together as a unit. Director Griffith has just returned from a New York sojourn where he has investigated the late developments in sound pictures. It is his idea that picture production will continue to center in Hollywood, and that even the greatest number of talkies will be made here.

Wampas Frolic February 14

VALENTINE'S DAY, February 14, has been officially set as the date of the annual "Wampas frolic." It is to be held at the Shrine auditorium, and committees are hard at work to make this a "bigger and better" film affair. The real excuse for the "frolic" is the selection of the 13 "Wampas baby stars of 1929." These are elected by the organization from among many candidates, and many of the girls so selected are now high in the list of popular players.

The "Wampas frolic" will be presented this year for the eighth time. It is probably the most highly publicized event of its sort in the entire world. Which isn't odd inasmuch as all the members of the organization are movie press agents. The affair is colorful and interesting, if for no other reason that than every picture celeb in Hollywood is in attendance. Formal announcement of the new crop of "baby stars" will be made within the next few days.

Our I-told-you-so department takes a bow with the announcement that Director George Fitzmaurice has been kind enough to fulfill our prophecy by signing a two-year contract with the United Artists organization. Director Fitzmaurice will make five photodramas during the two-year period and will receive $375,000 for his services. This comes to $75,000 per picture. Why raise your girl to be a movie star if you have a son whom you can bring up to be a director. In case you don't know, George is married to Diana Kane, which makes him brother-in-law to Lois Wilson.

Sophie Tucker Invades Films

UNDAUNTED by the results of Texas Guinan's invasion of and retreat from Hollywood, Sophie Tucker arrives here today. With her arrival Hollywood will have two residents who prefix "Madam" to their names. For Sophie is "Madame Sophie Tucker," and of course, Elinor Glyn is "Madam Glyn." Sophie will star on the Warner Brothers lot in their Vitaphone production, "Honky Tonk." Lilia Lee and George Duryea will provide the love interest. Lilia, by the way, is only 23 years old despite a career of 10 years in pictures. George Duryea is the Cecil De Mille "discovery," who played in "The Godless Girl."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

LOVE'S ANTIDOTE

By EMILY BURTON.

"I WON'T have it. I tell you I won't have it."

The head of the Pearson household banged his fist on the arm of his chair. Then he jumped up and stood glaring at his daughter.

"I don't know what you are thinking about, Sara," he burst forth. "Marry a foreigner! My daughter married to a foreigner—"

"John Henry!"

"Father!"

The exclamations fell simultaneously from the lips of Mrs. Pearson and Sara.

And then the telephone rang. The father answered the call and ended the conversation with:

"Come on over, Osborne."

"It's Buck Osborne," he said as he left the phone. "I don't see why you couldn't fall in love with a fellow like him."

"Now listen Daddy," Sara said, "I love Marti and I'm going to marry him. His family is one of the noblest in Mexico. He is educated and as nice as he can be. Just because he was born this side of the Rio Grande you high hat him. I came on this trip to Mexico just to please you; not because I wished to come. Now that I'm here and like it, you get mad at me."

"You like those guitar solos beneath your latticed window. You like the bright-hued sashes your Adonis wears. You like his violent love making and a lot of other silly rot like that—but you just wait."

"Telegram for Mr. Pearson," announced a voice in the hall.

The message was from his secretary in Scranton, Pa. "Important matters require your presence at the plant. Suggest that you catch first boat home."

"I'm glad of it," he muttered. Then aloud he said:

"We are going home on the first boat, Sally. You and Sara get busy and pack up so you'll be ready to leave Wednesday."

"Well, husband," said Mrs. Pearson dryly, "you seem set upon driving Sara into this Garinello's arms."

He stared at her with his mouth open.

"Whatta you mean?" he demanded. "Do you think I'm going to stand by and see Sara marry a foreigner? Is that what you want her to do?"

"No. That is why I have treated this man with utmost friendliness. That's why I have held forth upon his good qualities and seemed anxious for his presence at all times. Already Sara was beginning to be a little fed up on his ardent wooing. Then what do you do? Jump in with your double-fisted opposition and spoil everything I have done to cure her of the infatuation."

Mr. Pearson, completely crushed, asked meekly:

"Then what would you suggest?"

"I'm sure I don't know," was the answer.

It was Buck Osborne who suggested the remedy.

"I've known Sara ever since she was knee-high. I probably know her better than you do," he said. "When she gets back among folks of her own kind, she will see this man in an entirely different light. You have failed to take into account the effect of the environment down here. Sara is bewitched. Get her back on home soil and she will begin to see Garinello as her old friends see him. Maybe we could persuade him to come home with us on a visit. Our business down here is about ended. Let's take Garinello to Scranton."

Sara was surprised. She was delighted. So was her admirer. The trip on the boat was one long-drawn dream of happiness.

Buck Osborne was also on the boat, and he did everything possible to make the journey a pleasant one for everybody concerned.

Back in Scranton, Garinello somehow failed to click. He was too extremely suave and polite for the hail-fellow-well-met crowd in which Sara moved. His quaint accent that had sounded so charming in Mexico made her feel uncomfortable. She wished he would not use perfume and she wished that he looked more like—well, like Buck Osborne.

Sara's mother reminded her every day of her engagement to Garinello. Buck insisted upon pairing her off with the Mexican at every social gathering. Her father talked incessantly of his changed opinion concerning Garinello, holding him to the skies.

It was after the New Year's ball in the Pearson's home that Buck Osborne found Sara weeping her heart out.

"Why honey, what's the matter?" he cried.

"Oh, Buck, I'm so unhappy," she wailed. "Everybody expects me to marry Marti; and I'm so tired of him I could die. I was crazy about him, down there in his own country. But up here, he seems so different. I'm different. Everything is different."

"Well, Sara, you know you are not married to him yet," answered Buck. "There's no law to make you go on with it."

"Do you think I could escape?" she asked, the light of hope beaming from her eyes.

He nodded—emphatically—

"But what will people say? I've told the whole crowd that I was engaged to him. What will I tell them?"

"You might tell them that you changed your mind. That you found out you loved somebody else."

He was looking straight into her eyes with a tenderness that no woman ever mistakes.

"Oh, Buck! How did you know?" she whispered. "I didn't know, darling," he answered, "I just hoped."

MANY FORMS OF HEALTH TROUBLE ENDED BY KONJOLA

"New Medicine Goes To Very Source of Common Ailments," Says Konjola Man at McCulloch's Drug Store

Men and women in all walks of life are visiting the Konjola Man at McCulloch's Drug Store, Penn Ave. and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, to hear his personal explanation of the celebrated new medicine, Konjola. Countless modern people, regardless of their wealth or position, are suffering the same common ailments that arise from an unhealthy inner-system.

"Human suffering," said the Konjola Man yesterday, "afflicts the great the same as it afflicts the mass of people. This new Konjola goes to the very source of common ailments. By helping Nature, it is far above many of the older known remedies. In this new day of science, a medicine must first cleanse the system of all toxic poisons, and this must be done thru the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. The same medicine must strengthen and invigorate these organs to restore healthy, normal action. It takes a liquid to do these things. In making Konjola, we selected the juices from twenty-two of the finest medicinal plants and herbs. It is scientifically made in one of the largest modern laboratories.

"One of the first cases for which Konjola was used was kidney trouble, getting up frequently at nights. The man who took it came back the fourth day and said he slept all thru the previous night. We learned afterward that he had been doctoring over ten years for his trouble.

"In one case, a man was crippled with rheumatism and poisoned kidneys. He hadn't left his home for eighteen months. He completed a few weeks' treatment of Konjola and said he walked several blocks for the first time in two years. This, of course, was about three weeks after he completed Konjola. From this case, it was determined that Konjola would do wonders for neuritis, and one lady who had tried nearly everything for this trouble said that five bottles of Konjola had completely ended every ache and pain. She had previously taken mineral baths, electric treatments and medicine upon medicine without results. All of these are actual cases and can be verified by the signed statements in our possession.

"Another woman was treated with Konjola for stomach trouble. She said in five years she had spent several thousand dollars on her health, she was bedridden three days out of five but shortly after she began with Konjola, she could eat heartily of many things she hadn't dared to eat in years. Her food agreed with her and she continued Konjola a few weeks longer and gained nearly 20 pounds. She says she feels ten years younger, and her appearance certainly shows it. The lady told us that this new medicine did her more good than four years of special dieting. She took Konjola for nervousness and a general rundown system.

"When Konjola is taken into the human system, there are 22 extracts from natural plants and each one of these has a certain duty to perform on the functionary organs, the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels—and the cleansing and invigorating of these organs is what brings such amazing relief and new feelings of health after long cases of suffering.

PLEASANT RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Shoulders droop under weight of years. Young, yet beauty has fled. Cheeks are sallow and drawn. Unsightly pimples. Keep your system clean and you keep the beauty of youth. Its energy. Its irresistible charm. Then life is not a failure.

Clogged bowels and inactive liver cause poisons to seep through the system. Health vanishes and with it beauty and energy. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets will save you from this dark hour. For 20 years they have been prescribed in place of calomel to men and women seeking health and freedom from constipation. They act easily and smoothly. No dangerous griping. Take nightly before retiring. Results will amaze you.

Thousands of men and women would never be without Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Know them by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

HOUSE TO VOTE AGAIN ON NEW SEATING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—For the second time in this Congress, the House of Representatives will vote next week on whether it will obey the Constitution and reapportion its own membership.

After another session of parliamentary skirmishing, the House Census Committee finally reported the Fenn bill yesterday by the narrow margin of seven to six, but only after one member opposed to the measure agreed to abstain from voting, so as to avoid a tie.

This member was Representative Moorman (D.), of Kentucky. He was advised to take this course by other opponents of the bill who wish the issue taken to the floor for a final decision.

Once the bill was reported, Representative John Q. Tillson, Republican floor leader, announced that it would have a place on the House legislative calendar for January 10. It is believed that one and perhaps two days at the most will be consumed in discussing it.

When the reapportionment bill came before the House last spring its opponents managed to have it recommitted to the Census Committee by a vote of 200 to 179. While it is believed there has been little shift of sentiment since then, the administration is pinning its hope of victory on the 50 or more members who failed to vote last time. They hold the balance of power.

HOLIDAY MEAL WAITS AS GAS KILLS FIVE

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—The bodies of a man, his wife and their three guests were found last night in a six-room Brooklyn apartment. Police said they believed the five were overcome as they were preparing to eat New Year's dinner.

The table had been arranged and a roasted turkey was in the oven. Ambulance surgeons said the victims had been dead three or four days.

Authorities said they believed Mrs. Mary Wood, 45, had turned on the gas in the oven and later accidentally turned it on as she worked near the stove. The body of her husband, George, 50, was found near the dining table. Her body was found in a bedroom, where she was believed to have gone in an effort to open a window.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society Folks Prepare For Sojourns in Southlands

THERE'S no doubt about it, our local society folks are feeling the wanderlust again, and with the close of the season we can expect more and more telephones to be answered with the report that "Mrs. Lads-of-the-House has left town for the winter." Rather discouraging, from a strictly personal point of view, but certainly delightful for the traveler!

This year, as usual, there will be a Pittsburgh colony at Palm Beach—in fact the nucleus of that colony is already there. One or two who have winter homes in Florida have had them opened and made ready for occupancy. Their doors are a few local people down there for short visits. Among the latter are Judge and Mrs. James B. Drew, who are spending several weeks at the Breakers. I hear Mrs. Drew, of course, has many friends in Palm Beach, where most of her girlhood winters were spent with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Penn Snyder, who occupied one of the Breakers cottages for many years.

One of our debutantes is planning to leave shortly with her parents for a most interesting trip. This is Bettie McCullough, and with her father and mother, the William T. McCulloughs, of Beechwood avenue, she will depart about the middle of the month for Honolulu, where they will spend about three weeks. Later, the McCulloughs are to come back to Pasadena, I believe, to spend a couple of months at the Huntington Hotel.

THIS doesn't mean though, that social activities have ceased. On the contrary, the week end, which practically closes the season, is one of the busiest of the winter. Eleanor McCartney's marriage to William Lloyd Standish III is set for this afternoon at 5:30 o'clock, you know. The ceremony will be performed in the music room of the McCargo home in Woodland road by the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, pastor of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church. There are just to be two attendants, Eleanor's sister, Mrs. Edward Bailey Meyers, and Mr. Standish's brother, Thomas A. Standish, Jr. The young Standishes are going to live in Sewickley, I understand.

Then there are a couple of debutante parties scheduled. The Allison B. Maxwells are going to give a dinner in the Pittsburgh Golf Club for Louise Reed, the guests to join the regular club dance afterwards. And Mr. and Mrs. Chilton Scoville Bradley will be hosts at a dinner dance in the Indiana Club, a compliment to Miss Evans.

LAST night the big debutante party was the dinner dance which Mr. and Mrs. T. Clifford Jenkins and Mrs. Alfred Elliott Jenkins gave in the University Club for the formers' debutante daughter, Clara Dorothea Jenkins. The guests were placed at small tables which were decorated with pink roses and spring flowers, and the ballroom was adorned with Christmas greens and silver.

* * *

The receiving group included Elizabeth Jenkins as well as the hosts and the debutante. Mrs. Jenkins was crowned in black velvet embroidered with red roses, while Mrs. Alfred Jenkins appeared in a petal frock of white chiffon garbed with rhinestones and pearls. The debutante wore a bouffant frock of white satin embroidered with red, and her sister, Elizabeth, appeared in white chiffon and silver.

* * *

MOST of our holiday visitors are leaving now. Among them are Mr. and Mrs. Harkness Edwards and their small son, Harkness, Jr., who have been staying with Mr. Edwards' parents, Dr. and Mrs. Ogden M. Edwards, Jr., of Fifth avenue. They are planning to return to their home, Walnut Hall, Donerail, Ky., in a few days.

AND a party is being given this afternoon for one of these holiday guests. Dorothy Dunlevy is entertaining at tea in her home in Parkman boulevard for her sister, Mrs. Eugene Gerard Flannery, of Philadelphia, the former Rosemary Dunlevy, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Dunlevy, over Christmas. There will be a buffet dinner for the sides after the tea.

MRS. WILLIAM HENRY HEWITT, of Norfolk, Va., is visiting her mother, Mrs. Louise H. Adams, of Fairmont avenue, Dormont. Her husband, Lieut. Hewitt, sailed on Tuesday with the scouting fleet for winter maneuvers in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

MISS J. R. AUSTEN, of Aspinwall, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Mackenzie Austen, and George K. Rawlins, of the Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, which was solemnized Friday, December 28, in a quiet ceremony in Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Rawlins will be at home in Washington after June 1.

Club Women Told About Butter, Eggs

BUTTER and eggs were made the subject of an interesting talk by C. H. Lehmann before the American home department of the Congress of Clubs yesterday. Mr. Lehmann told how eggs are selected and spoke of the different grades, saying that eggs now are better cared for between the time they are gathered and sold than after the consumer gets them. Eggs should be kept at an even temperature, for in the average kitchen there is frequently sufficient heat to begin developing the embryo, he informed his listeners. The butter that is marketed today is far superior to that of other days, Mr. Lehmann told the women, for it is made of pure lactic acid culture. Miss Alice K. Negley, of the Consumers' League, was a second speaker. She stated that her organization is not interested so much in foods themselves as in the conditions under which women and children work in preparing these foods for market. Miss Negley announced a meeting of the league on January 14 in the Congress of Clubs. Miss Kathryn McCune Milden presented piano solos.

Mrs. Edmund J. Fairfield, chairman of the department, presided and brought the New Year's greetings of the congress president, Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky. She also introduced Mrs. Ralph W. Johnston, who asked the invocation. The department is to meet for luncheon at the Heinz plant on February 7, reservations to be made with Mrs. Fairfield or at the congress. At the regular luncheon meeting of the department next month, Mary Irene Hart, well known home economist, will be the guest of honor and speaker, and the meeting will be followed by a demonstration of waterless cooking at a downtown store. The date is February 1.

Weather Conditions.

The southwestern disturbance developed rapidly into a storm of marked size and intensity. It is centered over Missouri and Arkansas this morning, lowest barometer 29.48 inches at Springfield, Mo., and covers all the Mississippi Valley states. It produced moderately heavy rains over Oklahoma, Missouri, Arkansas, Eastern Texas and Louisiana and snow over all the Northern and Central Plains states. Six inches of snow fell over most of Kansas and Western Missouri. Thunderstorms occurred in Eastern Texas and in Louisiana.

The disturbance produced rising temperatures over the central valleys and eastward, but westward over the Plains states and the Rocky Mountain states there was a substantial dron in temperature. The freezing line extends as far south as Central Texas and the zero line to Kansas. In North Dakota the temperature is 14 degrees below zero.

River Conditions.

The rivers continue stationary or falling slowly. The upper Allegheny River pools are frozen over and light ice is running in the upper Allegheny at Parker and Franklin. Stage at Pittsburgh is 11.5 feet; Dam No. 2, 8.6, and Dam No. 6, 8.9. The Ohio River dams are up.

17,000 FEMALES SOLD DURING FAMINE

PEKING, Jan. 5.—(AP)—The Rev. F. J. Griffith, of the Church of England mission at Tatungfu in the province of Shansi, has reported to the International Famine Relief that more than 17,000 women and girls of the new province of Sulyan have been sold because of famine destitution.

"Many villages have been stripped of women and girls who were sold into slavery," he reported. "More than 17,000 have passed through the Yenmen pass, the main highway into Inner Shansi, and were sold for approximately $100,000 gold."

Brigands were active, he said, adding to the destitution by capturing a caravan of a thousand camels loaded with rice for the famine-stricken people.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Dreyfuss Shows Way.
Pirates Signing Fast.
Explain Rhem Waivers.
Title Chance Declined.
Fate of Gans Feared.
New Hockey Players.

PROTEST IS FILED ON ICE REFEREES.

JUDGING from the rate at which signed contracts for 1929 are coming back from the players of the Pittsburgh baseball club, President Barney Dreyfuss and his policies are going to stand out again as an object lesson to the other club owners in the major leagues. That is becoming a regular annual story. Every winter or spring, most of the magnates have trouble with some of their athletes over the matter of terms, and holdouts are reported in all directions, but almost invariably the rounding up of the Pirates is put through to quick completion without a sign of a hitch.

Barney Dreyfuss.

For years, Pittsburgh's percentage of holdouts has been much lower than that of any other club in the big show. Contract balking has been a decided rarity among the Pirates, and the few who failed to sign from season to season without delay were, as a rule, chronic recalcitrants or players of the type given to avoiding as much of the spring training grind as possible. Even after the pennant victories of 1925 and 1927, times when many a player is apt to get an inflated idea of his own worth and to spurn any salary figures offered for the succeeding season, the local magnates surprised the baseball world by signing his whole team before the owners of other clubs got fairly started on the annual job of enrolling their pastimers for a new campaign.

IT ALL goes to show what can be accomplished by operating a ball team along the right lines of liberality and fairness, and demonstrates very clearly that conditions on the Pittsburgh club are such that the players find no room for complaint. The fact that they are always so ready and willing to sign again indicates that they are well satisfied with the treatment they receive.

The usual results are already in evidence in the round-up for 1929. On account of a delay in the printing of the new contract forms, President Dreyfuss did not send out the agreements as early as in the past, and it was not until a week ago that he put them in the mails. But he reports that the contracts have come back so rapidly, with signatures affixed, that more than half of the players are already in line. The only men who have not been heard from are those residing so far away that there has not been time for them to receive and return their documents.

MANAGER DONIE BUSH, of the Pirates, is laid up at his home in Indianapolis, suffering from a severe cold contracted during the joint meeting of the National and American leagues in Chicago last month. President Dreyfuss tried to communicate with Bush by long-distance telephone yesterday, but learned that the little skipper is still under the weather.

The Buccaneer owner said that his attempt to get in touch with Bush did not mean that another deal was pending, explaining that he merely wished to consult the manager about one of the details of the spring training trip.

Pete Donohue.

WHEN Pitcher Flint Rhem, of the Cardinals, was allowed to get out of the big leagues, baseball fans in many quarters expressed surprise that the 15 other clubs in the majors had waived on him, inasmuch as they are continually paying large sums for less capable hurlers. Explanations are now being made. One of the waiver reasons given is that some of the clubs were unwilling to take a chance on Rhem because of the fear that he could not be induced to adhere more closely to the established rules of training than he is said to have done in the past, and another is that when claim was put in for him the Cardinal management put a prohibitive price on him in playing material and announced that it would withdraw the waiver request rather than let him go for anything less. With no other course open, the other clubs then consented to waive.

THE Cincinnati club is one that has come to the front with its reason for waiving on Rhem. The Red officials say that they were eager to get the pitcher, and offered $30,000 in cash and a couple of players for him, but that St. Louis refused to consider cash and was unwilling even to talk trade at the time.

Cincinnati held up the waivers on Rhem, and finally, the explanation continues, Branch Rickey said he would consider nothing less than a trade of Pitcher Pete Donohue for the Cardinal flinger. Manager Jack Hendricks says that he declined to part with Donohue, despite the fact that in the last two seasons Pete has won only 13 games against 27 lost, and that when Rickey would not listen to any other proposal Cincinnati finally waived.

IT IS believed that some of the other clubs could give similar reasons for letting Rhem go to the minors if they were willing to discuss the matter. For instance, it was reported at one time that Rickey wanted the Pittsburgh club to given up Glenn Wright in exchange for the pitcher, but the proposition met with a flat turn-down here.

Rickey's activities in the proceedings, by the way, tend to confirm the suspicions of fandom that the Cardinal "vice president" is still running things in St. Louis in spite of his attempt to create the impression that when the club dropped McKechnie for Southworth it was seeking to get a "fighting manager" who would actually be the boss of the team. The general opinion is that there has not been and never will be any other actual boss in the Cardinal camp as long as Rickey is hanging around.

Al Singer.

AL SINGER, New York championship prospect, is one member of the fistic fraternity who has not forgotten the fate of Joe Gans. The former lightweight champion, one of the greatest fighters of all time, underwent a weight-making strain that is said to have caused his death. That was back in 1906. For his memorable fight with Battling Nelson in Goldfield, Nev., on September 3 of that year, Gans was forced by Billy Nolan, manager of Nelson, not only to make 133 pounds ringside, the lightweight limit at that time, but to weigh in wearing full ring attire. The Negro won on a foul in the forty-second round, but grinding himself down to weight and fighting such a long battle while in that condition involved a strain that is said to have brought on tuberculosis and to have caused his death four years later.

SINGER remembers that, and is taking the same stand that Packy McFarland took after the Goldfield incident. McFarland refused to make the lightweight limit, but repeatedly denied charges that he had outgrown the class. "It isn't that I can't make the weight," Packy confided once while in Pittsburgh, "but the public doesn't care about a few pounds and I'm not going to Joe Gans myself for anybody."

That's the view that Singer is taking now, and for that reason he has surprised boxing promoters and critics in New York by turning down a chance to win the world featherweight championship in a match with Andre Routis, present title holder, in March. Singer, 21 years old, weighs 128 pounds. To contend for the crown he would have to make 126 pounds at 2 p. m. on the day of the fight. Few young boxers would permit a matter of two pounds to deprive them of such a championship opportunity. But Singer is different. He

"LEAGUE" HIT BY LYNCH

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—Investigation was launched today by Attorney General Joseph E. Warner into charges that a $30,000 "slush fund" was raised to bring professional Sunday baseball to Massachusetts.

The attorney general also delved into the charge that the Boston Braves' management issued free tickets with pictures of a "favorable" candidate on the back in efforts to defeat in the primaries former State Senator Thomas H. Bliodeau, an opponent of Sunday baseball.

The state probe was made to determine if the corrupt practices act had been violated.

The "slush fund" charges were brought forward by Attorney Joseph P. Walsh, representing Councilman William G. Lynch, accused of trying to get $5,000 each for a bloc of 13 councillors, and Daniel Carroll, manager of prize fighters.

A list of "donors" to the Recreation League fund read to the finance commission revealed that they were made by politicians, sports promoters, newspaper men, concessionaires at Braves Field and other friends of the ball club. Amounts ranged from $2 to $1,000.

Walsh produced a list of contributors to the Outdoor Recreation League, showing a total of $50,000, and said he would show that the list was false and that the expenditure of the $50,000 was made by Emil Fuchs, president of the Boston National League club.

CUNNINGHAM QUESTIONED

Walsh asked Edmund P. Cunningham, secretary of the Boston Braves, whether he knew of the subscriptions to the league and Cunningham replied that he did not. The secretary also denied that the list was made up to cover expenditures by the Braves. Asked who was president of the Outdoor Recration League, he said Claude B. Davidson, also president of the New England Baseball League held that position.

"Did you ever see Davidson consult with Fuchs at the Copley Plaza Hotel?" Walsh asked.

"Several times," Cunningham replied.

"About the Outdoor Recreation League?"

"No."

John C. L. Dowling, chairman of the Finance Commission, then asked Cunningham whether he had solicited any contributions to the Outdoor League campaign and Cunningham told him he had. He said he received $500 in cash from his brother, $1,000 in cash from a friend and $500 in cash from a business man. He had got the money in cash, he said, because he did not want to have any record of his connection with the league, in view of his position with the Braves. He did not know whether the three were contributing their own money.

"Did Judge Fuchs ever tell you that he gave them the money?" Commissioner Dowling asked.

"No," replied Cunningham.

WILSON INTERROGATES

City Councilman Robert G. Wilson stepped into the hearing earlier in the day. Wilson, whose name was among the 13 which Fuchs testified were given to him as members of the bloc asked for and was granted permission to question Cunningham.

Wilson also had figured in the testimony of Charles F. Adams, vice president of the Braves and president of the Boston Bruins Hockey Club, who said that an anonymous person whose voice sounded like Wilson's, had called him by telephone and advised him that a group of the councilmen would delay the Sunday sports order "until it had cobwebs on it" unless they received $5,000 apiece. Wilson denied that he made the call.

Cunningham testified he had talked with Councilmen Thomas H. Green, Michael Ward and Wilson about the Sunday sports bill before it came before the council and that no mention of money was made to him by any of them. He said that Wilson had declined to commit himself as to how he would vote on the order.

The councilman was applauded by the spectators when he concluded his questioning by asking Cunningham if he had not told him that he did not care to commit himself by announcing how he would vote on the order when it was brought before the council for final action. Cunningham answered that this was true.

Belanger Cops Title; Willie Davies Wins

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Albert (Frenchy) Belanger regained the Canadian flyweight boxing championship when he defeated Steve Rocco, the titleholder, in a 10-round bout last night. Both men are residents of Toronto. Belanger once was recognized by the National Boxing Association as flyweight champion of the world. Rocco weighed 111, Belanger 112.

Willie Davies, Charlerol (Pa.) flyweight, outpointed Art Giroux, of Montreal in eight rounds. Willie Cubla, Chilean Negro, defeated Harry Hill, Montreal flyweight, in six rounds.

COMEDY OF ERRORS

BLOCKED KICK

The Tournament of Roses game between California and Georgia Tech, resulting in an 8-7 victory for the latter team, developed more or less into a comedy of errors. Here, for instance, is Benny Lom's kick from behind the goal line, following Roy Riegels' wrong way run, bounding back after being blocked for the safety that cost the game.

TARTANS DROP OPENER TO JACKETS

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Jan. 5.—Carnegie Tech extended its losing streak from last season here last night when it fell before the Yellow Jackets of Waynesburg, 33 to 28, the Tartans losing their opening battle, almost won, in the final minutes of the engagement. It was one of the finest games staged on the local court in many a day.

Nease, Tech guard, gave the Waynesburg cagemen a lot to worry about with his long range shooting. He accounted for an even half dozen baskets which kept the Tartans in the thick of the fray from start to finish. Only the spirited dash of Allison and Porter threw the balance to Waynesburg and topped the excellent work of Nease, who took long chances and made them count.

The contest was closely fought. The local collegians had a three-point edge at half time, the score standing 18 to 15. The count was deadlocked on many occasions, one team forging to the front by a narrow margin only to be headed later.

Waynesburg showed a faster passing game and worked the ball down under the basket and got results when points counted most and the Techmen with their long range tactics were not certain of their tosses. The Pittsburghers excelled at the foul line, which proved a factor in keeping the game close. The lineup:

Waynesburg—33.		Tech—28.
Allison	F	H. White
Porter	F	Brown

EAST PITTSBURGH WINS

Rankin High was defeated by East Pittsburgh 27-23, last night at Rankin.

Yost, Here, Corrects Rule Explanation

FIELDING (HURRY-UP) YOST, athletic director at the University of Michigan, believes he has been misunderstood on his explanation of his proposed football rule amendment under which a ball fumbled by one team would be declared dead at the point fumbled, if recovered by the opposition.

Hoping to clear up any misunderstanding, Yost, here today, said he believed loss of punting distance was sufficient penalty.

"A fumble is not only a mistake but denotes inefficiency on the part of one player and consequently the entire team. The loss of the ball on a fumble and its recovery by the opponent is penalty enough when one considers that the recovering team saves itself the full punting distance of the team making the mistake.

"In other words, a team deep in its own territory on a fumble loses the chance to punt out and this in itself is a penalty. Alertness on the part of defense is a fundamental part of the game as possession of the ball is the all important thing in the game. You want merit to win. Inefficiency and violation of the rules should be punished. Is not the length of the punt sufficient?"

Yost stopped off in Pittsburgh en route back to Ann Arbor after visiting his mother, Mrs. Electa Yost, who is ill at her Fairview, W. Va., home.

PIRATES-BRUINS MEET TONIGHT IN BOSTON

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—The Pittsburgh Pirates and the Boston Bruins, in a neck-and-neck race for third place in the National Hockey League, will battle here tonight in a game that shapes up as the most important of the early season schedule. Third place is regarded as considerable of a prize, for the team finishing third gets into the play-offs for the world title and a chunk of the series dough. The team finishing fourth doesn't get anything.

At present the Bruins, in third place, are leading the Pirates by one and one-half games. The Bruins are eager to maintain their third-place rating, and they are ready to put up a real fight for their fleet-footed jugglers have told them that a Pittsburgh victory will leave the Bucs only one-half stride behind them in the race for the coveted berth.

COMMAND INTEREST

Odie Cleghorn, Pirate manager, brought his skaters here late yesterday from New York, where they held the champion Rangers to a 2-2 tie on Thursday. The Bruins arrived here at about the same time, returning from Montreal, where they handed the Maroons a 1-0 setback. Both clubs are in top condition, and local fans anticipate a thrilling fight.

The Pirates, ever a good attraction here, are commanding more interest among Hub fans than ever before, for they have Freddie Frederickson, a former Bruin star, at center in their starting lineup. Frederickson was sent to Pittsburgh a few weeks ago in a deal for Mickey MacKay, and has not played here since donning an enemy uniform.

The Bruins downed the Bucs, 1-0, at Pittsburgh in the opening game of the season, and scored another 1-0 triumph here on November 27. The locals rule slight favorites to win tonight. The probable lineup:

Bruins.		Pirates.
Thompson	G	Miller
Shore	D	McKinnon
Hitchman	D	Smith
Galbraith	C	Frederickson
Oliver	W	Darragh

Bruin spares—MacKay, Green, Rodden, Wiland, Clapper, Pettinger. Pirate spares—Drury, Cotton, McCaffery, White, Holway, McCurry.

Pitt Turns Down Game on Coast With Oregon

Pitt athletic authorities have turned down an invitation to play the University of Oregon in a post-season football game next December 7 on the Pacific Coast, it has been learned.

W. D. (Don) Harrison, Pitt's athletic director, said that school authorities would not permit the Panther gridders to be absent from their classes for such an extended period.

Roy Riegels on his history-making run of 70 yards to his own goal line, a play that has taken its place as the greatest faux pas ever committed in an important football game.

DUKES BATTLE MUSKINGUM TONIGHT

By JESS CARVER.

All is not gold that glitters—it may be the hairless head of a harried basketball coach. And harried is exactly the right word.

Coach Lang, of Muskingum College, is completing his annual invasion of the province of Western Pennsylvania tonight by sending his Magenta and Black-adorned Muskies against their most honorable foes, the Dukes of Duquesne University. Muskingum has been coming here for the past three years like an avenging spirit or something, pillaging more than its share of victories from the local boys, which includes all the Muskie foemen in the tri-state territory. This year, however, the Ohioans have been unable to maintain the pace, and so far have taken it on the chin. Geneva was the only college foe to take th United Presbyterians from Ohio.

DUKES NEED WIN

The Dukes have yet to win a game from Muskingum in their three-year relationships. It is the earnest hope of Chick Davies to take the boys tonight, and Chick's chances of doing so may be considered very good. There are no Taylors, Harrups, Clarks or Wilsons to flip 'em through the hoop for Coach Lang, and the replacements (almost entirely of sophomoric taint) have yet to gain in experience. Muskingum is still a good team, not a dangerous one.

What I started out to say was that in Coach Lang you'll see one coach with less hair than Doc Carlson of Pitt. Come and see for yourself.

Carnegie Tech, beaten at Waynesburg last night, will continue the short road trip by playing West Virginia at Morgantown tonight.

TITANS ROUT CRIMSON

Westminster dipped 'em from all angles at Grove City last night and put a few new wrinkles in the venerable Bob Thorn's placid countenance as the Titans humbled Grove City, 40 to 18.

With a new man, Red Crowell, in at the center, the F. P.'s displayed the same whirlwind attack that characterized their play last year when they won the Conference title. Crowell's play last night left little to be desired. Hell, all the missing Sparky Connors' shoes right well, I'm a-thinking.

The Blue and White hopped off to a nine-point lead, had the Crimson running around in circles from the first tip-off and were complete masters of the contest for the rest of the evening. Capt. Teslounty led in the scoring with seven field goals. Young O'Donovan is still a blushing Violet—not.

BIG TEN FIVES OPEN TONIGHT

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—The barrier flies up and the Big Ten basketball championship race starts of four widely-scattered fronts tonight with Northwestern at Michigan, Illinois at Purdue, Wisconsin at Minnesota and Ohio State at Iowa.

Chicago and Indiana are the only Big Ten teams which do not start their championship campaigns, although Chicago meets the Butler college tonight in its preliminary finals. Indiana will be idle.

Indications point to a campaign of upsets, probably exceeding that of the hectic Big Ten football season. Indiana and Purdue, co-champions last season, are strong favorites in the race.

Statistics from preliminary games reveal Illinois and Purdue tied for off-nae honors, each team bagging 156 points. Northwestern compiled the best defense record, holding its opponents to 75 points. The pre-season standings, showing games won, lost, total points and opponents points:

	W.	L.	T. P.	OPP.
Northwestern	4	0	124	75
Illinois	4	0	156	107

Pitt Five to Play Waynesburg Tuesday

Pitt has added another basketball game to the schedule. The Panthers will play Waynesburg College on the Pitt gym pavilion floor Tuesday night. The negotiations for the game were closed yesterday.

Waynesburg is the only member of the Tri-State Conference to be scheduled by the Panthers in basketball.

POOR PUNT SUCCEEDS

Phillips, all-America end of California, fails in an attempt to block a low punt by Mizell, the Georgia Tech star. This was just one of many errors of commission and omission in the big intersectional game at Pasadena. Fumble followed fumble, opportunity after opportunity was wasted by each team. And California, which gained almost twice as much ground as the Golden Tornado, not counting Riegels' run toward the wrong goal, finished on the short end.

GUS BEATS STRANGLER LEWIS

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Dynamite Gus Sonneberg, a former Dartmouth football player who took up professional wrestling less than a year ago, became the champion of the world here when Ed (Strangler) Lewis was disqualified for refusing to return to the ring.

Lewis had been butted seven times in rapid succession by Sonnenberg and each time he crawled or fell outside of the ropes to escape from the challenger's "flying tackle." Referee Leon Burbank warned Lewis each time he went outside and finally started to count on him. After the seventh butt, Lewis failed to step back before the count of 10 and Burbank awarded the decision to Sonnenberg.

A crowd of 20,000, which taxed the Boston garden to its capacity, received the decision enthusiastically and tendered Sonnenberg a wild ovation when he left the ring.

GUS GETS FIRST FALL

Up to that point Lewis had carefully avoided offering his abdomen as a target for Sonnenberg's butting. When the latter broke the fourth headlock, Lewis stood upright, regained his breath, and before he had a chance to step back or aside, Sonnenberg sprang.

Sonnenberg butted his stomach viciously and, as Lewis squirmed in agony, grabbed him by both legs and spilled him to the mat. He had Lewis' shoulders touching before the champion could make a defensive move.

Previous to this fall, Lewis indicated he intended to try to retain his title by downing the challenger with his famous headlock. He circled about Sonnenberg, stepping sideways with an arm guarding his middle, and tried to work this hold at every opportunity.

Sonnenberg tried all his other holds during the early stages of the match and set himself to launch his "flying tackle" when the champion broke the others. When his chance came he appeared in distress from the frightful pressure which Lewis had applied to his head.

LEWIS DECEIVED

His actions evidently deceived Lewis, who then gave him his first opportunity to use his butting and tripping tactics.

When the wrestlers returned to the ring after their rest period, Lewis was extremely cautious. He pawed with Sonnenberg for fully five minutes and then tripped the challenger to the mat, where he applied a headlock. Sonnenberg freed himself with a desperate squirm and got an armlock on the champion.

Sonnenberg tried a headlock and then another armlock before starting his butting attack. The first butt, which struck Lewis in the pit of the stomach, knocked him out of the ring. As he stepped back, Sonnenberg met him with another butt and Lewis crawled out of the ropes.

This action was repeated five times more before the referee counted the champion out. After the referee raised Sonnenberg's arm as a gesture of victory, Paul Bowser, promoter of the title bout, came into the ring to present him the bejeweled championship belt which was awarded to Lewis when he defeated Joe Stecher for the title two years ago.

Sarazen Leads Miami Tourney

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Gene Sarazen is still leading the pack on the Miami golf courses. The brilliant little shotmaker from New York, winner of the Miami and Miami Beach opens last year, turned in rounds of 73 at the Municipal links to lead the field by two strokes in the first 36 holes of the annual Miami tournament. Close behind were Mac Hutchison and Charley Mayo. Jock Hutchison and Jack Forrest, each with 148. Gene Christ, turned in 149 and Joe Turner, New York pro, 150. Johnny Farrell's putts wouldn't drop and he had to take 151. Massie Miller, Norwich (Conn.) pro, had a card of 151 to match Farrell.

"DEMPSEY" DEFEATS SEKYRA

By DAVIS J. WALSH,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—They said he looked like Dempsey, so I went up to the Garden last night to see what it was all about and it must be admitted that they were pretty nearly right. Almost immediately I noted a marked resemblance.

Both Dempsey and Max Schmeling, the German heavyweight, are in the habit of walking directly on the soles of their feet.

In other words, this Schmeling doesn't fight like Dempsey. He fights exactly like Max Schmeling, the German heavyweight, and, shoot gone me, if I'm not afraid that the man is a real fighter, at that. He beat nobody's chump last night when he won, going away, from Joe Sekyra, of Dayton, in 10 rounds of fast, interesting and instructive fighting. The instruction mostly was experienced by Sekyra, who uncovered the best fight the writer has seen him make, yet couldn't win more than three rounds of the 10.

These prototypes seldom have anything on the globule, and, granting that there are some few points of resemblance between the slim, svelte Dempsey of 1918 and the Schmeling of today, it may be just as well for the young man's future if we consider him strictly as himself. He would seem to have enough promise in his own right anyway.

The salient features of both are a set of beetling eyebrows and a weaving style in action. The salient difference, barring the fact that no man of his age punches like Dempsey, is that Jack used the weave to set himself for a punch. Schmeling uses it to escape a punch, and one must admit that his head-slipping is nothing to view with disdain. This fellow really can box. He can accept a punch with some degree of tranquility, too, for Sekyra wasn't in there doing a buck and wing. He was fighting back gamely and well and he scored often enough with rights and lefts.

SCELLO TO BOX GUIDO

Phil Scello, of McKeesport, and Young Guido, of Sharon, have been matched for the semi-final to the Howard Mayberry-Davy Adelman bout at McKeesport next Thursday night.

Long's Sport Comment

fears the effects of taking off the two pounds and has rejected the match.

"WHERE would there be any sense in slicing myself down to 126 pounds, even if I should win the title?" asks Singer. "Every time I boxed I'd have to go through the same ordeal of making weight and there is no telling how that might affect me.

"No, I can wait for a while for a championship, or a chance to win one. I hope to be in the game a long time. I can feel myself growing or developing, and as long as that is the case I am going to box at my natural weight, so that I'll be able to give the best that is in me. Some day I'll win a title in a heavier class, I hope, and when I do I'll be able to keep it for a long time if I take care of myself now."

THOUGH the Pittsburgh hockey club has improved a whole lot since the acquisition of Frank Frederickson, Manager Odie Cleghorn and the owners have not let down in their efforts to get as much additional strength as possible. They mean to keep on building for the future, and the scouts have been carrying out instructions to continue looking for material of promise in the smaller leagues. As a result, it is understood that three unusually good prospects have been lined up for next season at the latest, with a possibility that one or two of them will report before the close of the present race. One is in an Eastern and another in a Western League, and the third is the star of an amateur team in Manitoba.

Odie Cleghorn.

THE Manitoba player, in particular, is highly recommended. Last season he was a teammate of Blair, now of Toronto, and is said to be equally capable, being rated a crack goal shot and able to play either a line or a defense position acceptably.

Meanwhile, Manager Cleghorn and Benny Leonard are giving the present campaign all due attention and aim to make as strong a finish as possible. Incidentally, they have sent a protest to League President Frank Calder against the work of some of the referees. They charge that at Duquesne Garden recently a visiting team was allowed two goals on shots that were made on off-side plays, and assert that some of the officials are loafing on the job and not exerting themselves sufficiently to skate up to the points from which shots are made.

SCHOOL CHAMPS LOSE OPENING CAGE TILTS

Gene Reiterates His Retirement Is Definite

ROME, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Gene Tunney has "definitely and decidedly retired," he said here, and stories circulated to create a contrary idea are entirely without foundation.

The former heavyweight champion, in response to an inquiry from the Associated Press, replied:

"I prefer to completely ignore any story of my coming back since it is palpably a press agent yarn. But if you must have a reply, it is that I have definitely and decidedly retired."

Y. M. H. A. MEETS KINGSLEY FOR FIRST PLACE

By JULIUS LEVIN.

All attention in amateur basketball circles will be focused on the Young Men's Hebrew Association tonight where the Y. M. H. A. and Kingsley House teams clash in a battle to determine the leader in the Greater Pittsburgh Institutional League.

The Y. M. H. A. passers at present are setting the pace in this circuit by a margin of a half game, their only defeat so far this season coming at the hands of Kingsley House. Tonight the Bellefielders will strive to turn the tables on Coach Yetter's quintet for the crushing defeat suffered earlier in the season.

Both teams include in their lineups some of the best amateur stars in this section and followers of the two clubs are looking for a battle-royal tonight. The game promises to draw the largest crowd of the season. In the preliminary game the reserves of both institutions will furnish the competition.

DRIBBLES

The Miele-Franchinas, fresh from their victory over the Goldensons at Columbus Temple last Monday night, will attempt to add the Duquesne Light aggregation to their list of victims tonight when they meet in an Allegheny County League game at the South Side Market House.

BIG STUFF, BOYS! BUCS LEAVE IN SIX WEEKS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

PIRATE followers today realized that with the announcement last night by the local baseball office of the dates of departure of the players to the spring training camp, another season was not so far in the offing.

The announcement made by Treasurer Sam Dreyfuss disclosed that the directors of the team will follow the custom of the past few years in sending the athletes to camp in two squads, the pitchers and catchers to go ahead of the other plays.

The batterymen will jump off for Paso Robles Monday night, February 18, or six weeks from next Monday. The second squad will leave six days later on February 24. The athletes will travel via the Pennsylvania, Chicago and Alton, Rock Island and Southern Pacific railways, the routes mapped out by the treasurer of the club.

ENS, STANAGE TO RETURN

Co-incident with the giving out of the departure dates was the announcement that Jewel Ens and Oscar Stanage, assistants to Manager Donie Bush, would occupy their customary posts in the coming campaign.

Ens has been a member of the Pirate household for seven years, four of which were spent as a player. Stanage, who played with Bush at Detroit, came to the Bucs when Donie took up the reins of leadership. At the present time, Ens and his family are wintering in Leesburg, Fla., home of Pitcher Lee Meadows. Stanage is employed in the office of the county treasurer in Detroit in the off season.

Manager Bush will be in charge of the first squad of Pirates as they travel to the training camp. Scout Bill Hinchman will come from his Columbus home to take charge of the second squad. Bush and his batterymen are due to reach Paso Robles on the afternoon of February 22. The manager expects to hold the first drill on the following day.

Benton First Giant To Sign Contract

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Larry Benton, leading pitcher of the National League in games won and lost, has won the honor of being the first player on the Giants to sign for 1929. The pitcher returned his contract by return mail.

The New York club officials followed the usual baseball practice of keeping contract figures secret, but it was understood the pitcher was given a substantial reward for his good work last season.

Ko Ko Mo Kids Break Tenpin Record

The Ko Ko Mo Kids, of East Pittsburgh, generally regarded as the best tenpin bowling team in Western Pennsylvania, shattered the Tri-State District three-game record this week when they rolled up a total of 3,193 in a league match on the Votel brothers' East Pittsburgh alleys.

Rolling against the Greensburg No. 2 team, the Ko Ko Mos started with a 1,027 game. In the second game they collected 1,033 pins and they finished with a 1,104 game.

Four members of the five-man team had better than 600 totals. Eddie Votel set the pace with 685, and his brother, Harry, was second with 655. S. Guest totaled 639, G. Ockes hit 634 and Bennett was low with 550.

The Ko Ko Mos are to represent Pittsburgh in the A. B. C. tournament at Chicago in March.

With the national amateur second round having a couple of well-balanced games today, local socceries should visit either Leslie Park, Lawrenceville or the Swissvale grounds. Two battles out of the ordinary will be served for the fans' approval and both games should bring out large crowds.

The attraction at Leslie Park will find the Keystone club, from out of the hills back of Irwin, meeting the Celtics. These miners are coming down with a reputation of being good goal-getters, who have a well-balanced club. If the Green and White from the Strip intends to keep in the national journey, they had better show plenty of stuff today.

At Swissvale, the Westinghouse Club of the American League will meet the Union Switch and Signal eleven of the District Loop. A meeting between interleague clubs always provides a thrill for the fans, and the Westinghouse-Switch battle is going to be quite a while.

Both games will start promptly at 3 o'clock.

SMOKE PROBLEM TO BE DISCUSSED IN EAST END CHURCH

"NANCY DEANE" by ROY L. FOLEY

Mrs. O'Day Tells Nancy of Her Real Mother After She Is Injured

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Nancy Deane, golden haired, dark-eyed, has been brought up by the O'Days in the town of Washington, Pa.; she is really the daughter of Montague Deane and Julie Abbott, the former the disinherited son of one of the richest families in Pittsburgh, but she is unaware of this relationship. She loves the O'Days and works in the station lunch room to help them pay their rent. There she meets John Blair, an upstanding young man who helps her out of a difficulty and invites her to go to the circus. Although she is wary of men generally she recognizes that Blair is a gentleman and accepts. Nancy loses her job and goes home to find everything there upset. Mrs. O'Day tells her she's heard from her mother who's in town with the circus and wants to see the baby she deserted 18 years before.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

NANCY gasped. She clutched John Blair's arm, burying her rigid fingers into his muscles.

Julie Abbott paused for a moment, acknowledged the thunder of applause that came down to her, and then ran straight across the track and bounded into the center ring. The spotlight followed her. She ran around the ring, bowing courtesying so low that the crisp tulle of her ballet skirt swept the sawdust. She danced around and around. Once she stopped directly in front of Nancy and John Blair and looked straight at them as though she knew them. She gave a little kick to her heels, did a step of the Charleston, and scampered over to the rope ladder that led up to the wire. Her yellow head was the center of 10,000 eyes as she climbed up and up.

Nancy's eyes were riveted on that head. Hair like her own, it was, kept bright, probably, with golden glints from a beauty parlor.

Julie Abbott reached the platform, did another little dance, and gave the signal for the jazz director to start the wailing, clashing instruments.

She stepped out onto the wire, then, ran across and back again in less time than it takes to tell it, just as a preliminary to the exhibition. She got the feel of the thing, her balance, and then sang out.

"Let's go!"

"Yes sir, that's my baby,

"No sir, I don't mean maybe."

The jazz band started the popular song, everyone's feet began tapping in time with the music. A few of the Charleston steps on the tiny platform first, then onto the wire danced Julie Abbott. The fluttering fans stopped. Small boys with their mouths full of popcorn ceased munching and let their jaws drop.

"Yes, sir, that's my ba——"

Nancy closed her eyes. Her senses were reeling.

"Yes, sir, I don't mean maybe."

The blood pounded through her temples.

"That's my baby now!"

"That's my mother," she tried to say. Her lips wouldn't form the words.

Julie Abbott had danced across the wire and now was safe on the other platform, bending low, turning this way and that, kissing the palms of her left hand and then snapping it with two of the fingers of the right hand, as though the kiss was a thing of substance that could be caught by the audience.

The jazz instruments started moaning again. Julie flung one last kiss straight into the section where Nancy and John were sitting, stepped onto the wire again, danced to its center, teetered, lost her balance and fell.

Women screamed. It happened so suddenly. Her fall came so unexpectedly, because she had not appeared to be struggling to regain a balance, that she went hurling through the air before the jazz band could stop.

"Yes, sir, that's my baby——"

Nancy's screams, agonized, terrible, could be heard above the cries of all the other screaming women.

"That's my mother! That's my mother!" she moaned and beat her

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

ACCORDING to the fable which originated in Western Pennsylvania, a group was sitting around Heaven one afternoon when one figure began telling about his home town. He came from Johnstown, Pa., he said, and recounted the story of the flood which visited that place. In the midst of his story an old man got up, yawned, and walked away without hearing the end of the story. The story-teller was a little offended. "Who is that man that just yawned and walked away?" he asked. "That's Noah," said the second citizen.

Painters, that is artists, are viewed as different by the average man, and no wonder, if the stories about them are true. Here is a story about Olie Nauray, a Viennese, who lived here a year, and left, he said, when people stared at him because he wore a beard.

Two of his paintings, they say, lately have been purchased by Mussolini and Queen Marie, which, if you know Europe as this column knows it, just practically makes Nauray.

NAURAY has a step-brother still here, a man named Milan Petrovits, whose home in Rosedale, near Verona, is filled with Petrovits' paintings. In the kitchen, a courier declares, there is a landscape, suggestive, reasonably enough, of an adjacent farm and its many products, and there is a good one of a cow.

* * *

Of course, other kitchens go in for art, too, but not on such an extensive scale. What kitchen doesn't have a calendar girl demurely smelling a rose, just above the sign that says Oscar Blutch has the best pig knuckles, kraut and meats of all kinds in the neighborhood.

Members of the City Council of Boston are accused of soliciting a bribe in connection with the issuing of a permit for Sunday baseball in that town, which causes the column to glow a little with local civic pride.

Since the Pittsburgh Council of nine was inaugurated in Pittsburgh, if memory serves, there has never been made public a charge that graft has ever stalked the rooms of the local solons. As the body has been changed often since its inception this is neither a personal nor a partisan boost, but simply a boost for Ole Man Honesty and the solons who have marched with him side by side. It was the fact that under the old system, a select and a common councilman to every ward, some monkeyshines were uncovered, that the system was changed to the present one. At first the Council of nine was a non-partisan body, but a later development put the selection of councilmen on a partisan basis. The class in civics is now dismissed. Miss Prebbins, is that your tobacco on the desk?

A VISIT to several Pittsburgh hospitals lately prompts some curiosity as to what hospital orderlies did before they became orderlies and what, after they leave, do they work at. Of all classes of men who mingle in their daily work with well-dressed and attractive girls the hospital orderlies seem the most unconscious of the other sex. A nurse who set her cap, assuming she has progressed far enough to rate one, for a hospital orderly would have a tough job on her hands. Well might students serving their interneship in hospitals look to the orderlies for example, but maybe the nurses would object to that.

* * *

A most curious complaint comes from a spy. He says that on passing a certain cornerman downtown at the time the cornerman is blowing his traffic whistle there issues a spray that would have students of hygiene running around in frantic circles. This has been referred to the Committee on Whistles and Sprays.

Lindy Says

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.

Mr. Hoover lands at Old Point Comfort tomorrow. That's about the last comfort he will get for the next four years. If his proposed cabinet meet him at the train in Washington, it should be a bigger reception than Lindbergh's.

Mr. Coolidge also just got back off a trip away down in Georgia. That's as far for him as Chili and Peru were for Hoover. Mr. Coolidge took passports down there with him.

We are loaning Europe two financiers, to show 'em how to pay each other off without any money, by just re-organizing and issuing more stock like we do.

Yours, WILL.

hands together. She leaped to her feet, jumped straight over the heads of the people in the two rows before her and dashed toward the ring where lay Julie Abbott, a crumpled heap of white tulle and golden hair.

She fought until she forced her way inside the circle and fell at the satin shod feet. Someone tried to pull her away. "This is my mother, my mother!" she wept.

Julie Abbott opened her eyes and moaned. Her lips parted as though to speak. She lifted her hand to Nancy, motioned her to come closer. Nancy fell on her knees and kissed her.

What happened after that was ever after a blank to Nancy. Her next recollection was of a circus dressing room. She was surrounded by women in tights and gay costumes. Some of them were half clothed and one was bathing her forehead with a cold sponge.

"That's all right now, dearie," the woman was saying, "that's all right."

She patted Nancy's hand. "You must have fainted."

With a sickening flash, Nancy remembered everything.

"Where's Julie Abbott? Where's my mother?" she asked.

"Your mother! What do you mean your mother? She's in the hospital."

Nancy, weak and dazed, jumped up and ran from the tent.

At the hospital door she was questioned by Miss Jenkins, a nurse she had met after Darry O'Day had stumbled off the back porch, breaking two ribs and a wrist. At that time Miss Jenkins impressed Nancy as the nicest human being she had ever seen.

"What is it you want? Whom do you wish to see?" she asked crisply, tightening her mouth into a thin line, as Nancy dishevled and frantic stood out of breath before her.

"That circus lady. The one who fell. The tight rope walker. Is she here. Is she dead?"

"Yes, she's here. They brought her in 20 minutes ago. I believe she's dying."

"Please let me go to her. She's my mother. I must see her before she dies. Is she conscious?"

Miss Jenkins' light eyes widened, seemed to go a shade lighter, if that were possible. She didn't answer at once, but glanced at Nancy's feet, taking in every detail of her clothing, the high-heeled patent leather shoes, now covered with dust, the strap loose on one. The "nude" stockings, Nancy's one extravagance, her short skirt, her tight belt, such as the flappers of her age affected.

"Your mother? Why, aren't you the O'Day girl who lives on Maple street. Isn't your name Nancy O'Day? The woman they brought in here is a circus woman in a ballet costume. Her name is Abbott. I think her back is broken."

"Oh Miss Jenkins, please, she's my mother."

But Miss Jenkins was obdurate and insisted on telephoning to Mrs. O'Day.

Half an hour later both Muddy O'Day and Nancy were kneeling beside the bed of Julie Abbott.

Julie opened her eyes. She looked at Mrs. O'Day, the faintest gleam of recognition crossing her face. She tried to smile. Then she turned her eyes to Nancy.

"Julie, Julie. This is your baby girl. This is your daughter, Julie. This is Nancy. Can't you see she's the image of you, Julie. See her hair. It's like your own hair. Just like your own hair used to be."

"Sorry, you'll have to leave now."

Miss Jenkins snapped out the words as though she was closing the public library and shooing out small boys.

Nancy and Mrs. O'Day rose from their knees and looked down on the face of Julie Abbott. There was no sign of breathing. Nancy noticed the hand on the counterpane. There were a thousand little pin-holes in it. The nails were long, and pointed, and very, very pink.

Later, in the O'Day sitting room, on the old green couch with the sagging springs, Mrs. O'Day told Nancy all about the love of Monty Deane, Jr., for Julie Abbott.

"It was just eighteen years ago this June," Mrs. O'Day was saying, "that was the year Darry was hurt in the mill. What with the expenses, I went to work over at the hospital—that very same hospital where Julie Abbott lays dyin' now. She was an English girl, your mother, a-playin' around with circuses. But in them days there was no such circuses as there are now. An' being a circus performer wasn't looked upon as it is nowadays. The circus women were considered a pretty rough lot, and decent people was wary of 'em.

"That's why Monty Deane was disinherited when he brought your mother home to that big place in Pittsburgh. They disowned him, and told him never to set foot inside the door while he had that woman with him. You see he was engaged to marry a society girl and two weeks before the wedding he comes home with Julie Abbott from some cheap show.

"As I remember the way Julie told it then, the two of them arrived when Mr. and Mrs. Deane were East, and your parents were [illegible] in the [illegible] of the wedding. They was waitin' three months for Monty's parents to come home to bestow their blessin'.

"But instead of a blessin', instead your Montgomery Deane went into a spasm of rage. They say the way he went on was awful. He said he'd annul the marriage, but Monty was 21. So your grandpa ordered the two of them from his home, puttin' the curse on them.

"An' Monty said he'd take his bride and go, and to the devil with his pa. An' the two of them went, leavin' half their things behind.

"Monty Deane never entered his pa's house again. Your mother said he disappeared or died within the year after they was married.

"An' then your mother went back to the circus. She hadn't no money. She could do things on the trapeze. She come from one of them circus families. She was back with the circus only a few weeks when she knew she would have to stop, because she was going to have a baby.

"So she took a job here in Washington, in the hospital, doing kitchen work. It was there that I met her. She came to board in this house until she couldn't work in the hospital kitchen no longer. Her baby was born here. You was the baby.

Nancy listened to the story without moving a muscle. Not once did she take her eyes from Mrs. O'Day's face. She was calm now, thinking, thinking.

Mrs. O'Day broke the silence.

"Nancy, Colleen, that's the story. That's your mother over there in the hospital dying. A strange creature. Eighteen years ago she was a beauty, a laughing, giddy, circus lady. You're the image of her now. Then she was just the age that you are now.

"She's dying, now, Nancy. Your real mother is dyin'. What can you say to me now—I've tried to be a mother to you, Colleen, even if I told you the tale about you comin' from the orphan asylum in Pittsburgh.

Mrs. O'Day pressed her work-worn hands into her eyes, the tears trickling down onto her funny old dress.

Nancy tried to pray that she would always be worthy of Muggie O'Day. Her lips would not move. Her hands were like ice.

"Now I know where I got my love for a circus," Nancy said.

"Now I know why I love glittering things, and spangles and crowds and music."

CHAPTER IV.

NANCY had plenty to think about that night but she vowed that no matter what happened she would love Mud and Darry always, never hurt them or bring disgrace upon them.

It was not until the next morning at breakfast that she remembered she had no job. She explained to the astonished foster parents what had happened at the station, but Mrs. O'Day did not seem unduly disturbed. She reminded Nancy gently that they'd better be getting to the hospital. They both had a feeling that Julie Abbott might not be alive, as they entered the darkened room the pitiful figure lay with her eyes open on the white cot. A nurse tiptoed in, raised the shade a bit and started to take the patient's pulse.

Not until then did Nancy and Mrs. O'Day notice there was another person in the room. Kneeling against the dresser, her head on her arms, was a woman of the circus. Her face was hidden, as she was crying. Beside her on the dresser was an open box containing papers and a few letters.

No one said a word. The nurse snapped her watch, and made a gesture conveying more eloquently than words the warning that death was in the room.

When she had gone Julie opened her eyes and tried to speak. She attempted to raise her hand to Nancy, but it dropped back, and only the fingers moved, as though she wanted Nancy to come closer.

"Are you—my—little—girl?"

She forced the words out, then closed her eyes again as though the effort had exhausted her.

Nancy dropped her head to the pillow beside Julie. Mrs. O'Day looked into the two faces, mother and daughter. How much alike they were. The moulding of their chins, the lips, were the same. But Nancy's face was a young face, a child's face almost, frank and innocent while on Julie's the marks of a hard life insisted on showing through the beauty of her features and the fairness of her skin.

The eyes blue lidded startling against the white of her face, opened again.

"I'm your mother. Have they told—you?" The words were dragged out.

"Can you forgive me—baby—girl?"

The effort of talking exhausted her. The blue lids closed again. Nancy took her mother's hand in her own.

"I loved your father so—"

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

DON'T you ever ponder this question when you see the vampiest sort of a vamp who is named Susan? Or the sweetest, most demure little miss in the world called Yvonne? You'd think it should be just the reverse, but—the names have absolutely no effect. Of course, one can't always live entirely up to a name, for one's disposition may be such that it cannot adapt itself to the flowery name which one carries.

But I do think it's too bad to meet Jane and Susan and Betty Ann and Mary Elizabeth and find them to be—well, bewitching beings who should be named Yvonne and Cleopatra and Francette and Babette.

It may be, though, that each is at heart what her name implies. The vamp may secretly be the most domestic creature ever known, and the timid, mousey little girl may think herself to be a second Helen of Troy.

Wouldn't it be grand if we could each choose our own name? Some people do—but yet, it seems to me that there's always something wrong in their choice.

But, at any rate, it's not the name that counts, it's the girl who bears it. And I'm for all of 'em all the time, every time. Bless their little hearts! For they're all adorable and lovely and beautiful. And, after all, "A rose by any other name is just as sweet."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Attractive Note Paper

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Is it correct to eat frog legs with the fingers? If so, it seems to me that it should be the correct way to eat chicken, although you say not.

2. Is my stationery in good form and should the monogram be on the left or right side of the stationery?

A. E.

NO, it is not correct to eat frogs' legs with the fingers. They are apt to be greasy and naturally make the fingers sticky. And this, of course, is the reason why we shouldn't eat frogs' legs with our fingers. I realize that it isn't the easiest thing in the world to do this, and I realize, in a very personal realization, too, it is for I am exceedingly fond of frogs' legs—that eating frogs' legs takes a very special form of deep patience. But this is the penalty one pays for having the reputation of being a "punctilious eater."

2. Your letter paper itself is to my taste exceptionally good looking—quite perfect, in fact. It is of a good oyster shade, of fine, generous size and of excellent texture. The monogram I don't like so much, for to me it seems too large. But really it is quite all right. The monogram is usually on the left side, but if one prefers it may be on the right. However, when it is on the left we can balance it with the writing of the date or the address, or both.

Condolence Notes

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Would it be perfectly proper for me to write a letter of condolence to my employer? He has just lost his sister. Or would it be better to speak to him? If it is proper will you please tell me how to write a few words of sympathy?

I am in an office which is just like one big family, so a note to him could be rather friendly, if you know what I mean.

M.

I DO not know what you mean, and I recommend that you write a short, sincere note of sympathy. By no means speak to him of his loss, for most people, and especially men, do not wish to speak of a sorrow so near.

Perhaps this type of note will suggest a form to you:

Dear Mr. Darrow:

Will you please let me tell you of my deep and most sincere sympathy for you in your loss of your sister? I know how dear she was to you, and I realize, therefore, what her passing means to you.

Please know that I am ready to be of any service possible to you—you have only to call on me.

Most sincerely yours.

Horoscopes

Sunday, January 6

SUNDAY'S horoscope shows benefits for things ecclesiastical, for and from elderly persons and institutions, and also encourages literary or cultural pursuits. Other affairs are adversely aspected, especially personal contacts.

AN important day, with the faculties and emotions plunged to high activities, is the augury based on the fine Uranian influx. This is assisted by the parallel of Sol to Mercury and other testimonies of initiative, adventure and accomplishment in realms of high endeavor. There may be unforeseen and radical change, but there is also hint of the subtle and occult or metaphysical.

Those whose birthday it is are at the threshold of an important year, with much of high adventure and accomplishment. This may lead into advanced lines of thought and action, with unexpected and far-reaching changes. Beware subtlety.

A child born on this day may have rare talents and ingenuity, with a leaning toward adventure and investigation into higher forces and faculties.

In your longing for your giant self lies your goodness, and that longing is in all of you.—KAHLIL GIBRAN.

Creased Clothing

Place your clothes on a hanger immediately after removal, but leave them hanging in the room and do not put them away in the wardrobe. Dresses that have been worn all day and perhaps under a coat, are creased and affected by the warmth of the body. If they are given an hour or two in the air they freshen up and more or less iron out their own creases. Otherwise those creases develop into permanent lines.

Furniture Scratches

Scratches on furniture can be removed by the application of equal parts of salad oil and vinegar. Rub well into the wood with a soft cloth until the scratches have disappeared. Then polish.

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Is Aroused by an Excited Call From Marion

"AUNTIE MADGE! Auntie Madge!" Marion's usually soft, musical voice, now almost shrill with excitement, sounded outside my door. "Isn't it time to get up? The clock in the kitchen says 5, and Katie isn't even down yet!"

"Wait a second," I called, trying to keep the irritation of untimely waking out of my voice. Our train left the station at a quarter of 7, and with all preparations made the night before for a day's shopping tour, there was no need to give ourselves more than a good hour for dressing, breakfasting and driving to the train. But I could not find room in my heart for censure of Marion's impatience. She was that most enthusiastic and excitable of young things, a schoolgirl contemplating a shopping tour, and I indulgently expected a most hectic day.

I rose, and crossing the room, unlocked my door admitting Marion, fully dressed for the day, even to her hat. I choked back the smile which would have hurt the sensitive child, and put up my hand with the pretense of hiding a yawn.

"Is your mother up?" I asked.

"I don't know," she answered. "As soon as I was dressed, I went down to the kitchen, thinking maybe I could help Katie with the breakfast, but there wasn't a sign of either her or Jim. I started to go and knock at her door, then I thought I'd better come to you, first."

"That was quite—prudent," I said with a little smile and she caught my meaning with a responsive giggle.

"Katie is a bit of a Tartar if anybody besides you questions her," she said, then added anxiously: "But have you thought, Auntie Madge? She may be sick or something. I could get breakfast—after a fashion."

"I'm sure she isn't sick," I said soothingly. "But she never gets down to the kitchen before half-past five, sometimes later, when we are going on that early train. She gets everything ready the night before, and so can get breakfast in surprisingly short time. She'll be down at half-past five. You'll see!"

She drew a long breath of patent relief, then laughed at herself with the propensity for self-ridicule which is a heritage from her mother.

"I know I'm crazy," she said, "but I can't help it. I can hardly stand still. Just think of having a whole day shopping in New York. They have such spiffy things for school, and Mummy says I may have anything within reason."

I looked at the shining eyes and flushed face of Lillian's winsome young daughter and promptly banished the thought which had sprung into my mind, that my old friend was lavishing too much upon her only child. I knew that if I had been in Lillian's place, it would have been hard for me to deny that eager loveliness anything which I could possibly give her.

I could not resist a word of reminder, however.

"I wonder if you realize what a fortunate girl you are, Marion," I said. "All mothers are not so indulgent as yours."

"She's the best mummy in the world," she declared fervently, "and she's lots too good for me. But honestly, Auntie Madge, I'm going to be awfully careful about asking her for things. I've found out that she wants me to have nice things so much that she gets them sometimes when she needs the money for something herself. I'm going to put a stop to that. I don't know just how yet, but I'll find a way."

She nodded her head so vehemently that the treacherous hairpins of her recently put up hair fell to the floor. She picked them up with an exasperated grimace.

"The trail of the hairpins," she said. "We make pools on 'em at school—the girls are all letting their hair grow, you know—and the girl who finds the most on the campus each day wins the pool. Now I've got to go and put up my hair again. Well! I suppose it'll keep me from worrying about missing the train."

She blew me a kiss and flitted out of the room, while I began dressing with an inexplicably depressed feeling—the remembrance of the letter which had aroused Lillian's fantastic fear of its holding some subtle menace for her young daughter.

How to Keep Well

By Royal S. Copeland, M. D.

Old and Young Usually Pneumonia Victims

WHEN we talk about pneumonia we must consider two entirely different conditions. The disease which used to be called "lung fever" is the true pneumonia, known to the medical profession as "lobar pneumonia."

DR. COPELAND

This is an acute infectious disease. That is, it is caused by a definite germ, developing one or another of the "types" of pneumonia. It comes on suddenly. Without the slightest warning, perhaps, there is a chill, together with sharp pain and high fever.

Another disease, "broncho-pneumonia," is entirely different in its nature. It is the extension of an inflammation from the bronchial tubes to the air cells of the lungs.

This form of pneumonia follows another disease which has bronchitis as a symptom. For instance, influenza, measles or whooping cough, will have nasal and throat symptoms. Inflammation of the upper part of the breathing apparatus extends downward into the windpipe and creeps gradually into the lungs.

The lungs may be quite seriously involved before the pneumonia is discovered. The lung trouble is hidden by the more pronounced symptoms of the original ailment.

Instead of coming on suddenly like true pneumonia, the onset is slow. Cough, fever and prostration are late symptoms.

In all forms of inflammation of the lungs there is difficult breathing. In broncho-pneumonia this symptom may be very marked.

The breathing is rapid. The fever runs to 103 or 104 degrees and is quite irregular, running up and down. The pulse is rapid.

Pretty soon, the painful cough becomes productive. That is, there will be spitting up of blood-streaked mucus. The face is pale and the lips blue.

In lobar pneumonia, except in the rare double type, only one lung is involved. In broncho-pneumonia, however, both lungs are likely to be affected.

The former trouble is a disease which attacks persons in the prime of life. The most sturdy and husky may have it.

On the contrary, broncho-pneumonia is a disease more commonly met in the extremes of life. Old, feeble people and young children are usually the victims.

The outcome of this disease depends largely on the general condition. If the patient has been in good physical trim, living a hygeene life, and is well nourished and strong, the outcome is more likely to be favorable.

The disease continues for from 10 days to three weeks. If it lasts longer complications must be suspected. In any event every care must be given in order that recovery may be rapid.

In any case of pneumonia, no matter what form it takes, it is essential to have the personal care of the family physician. It is foolish to try to "fight it off." Go to bed, keep perfectly quiet and send for the doctor.

The serious cases are those which are neglected in the early stages. Care at that time will shorten the duration of the ailment and help to bring about a perfect recovery.

Answers to Health Queries

V. C. Q.—Will you please tell me what will make pimples leave my face? They break out on my chin and alongside of my nose and cheek.

A.—I would suggest that you correct your diet, by cutting down on sugar, starches and coffee. Eat simple food. Avoid constipation.

C. S. Q.—What can be done to remove moles?

A.—Small moles may be removed by the electric needle. The X-ray, radium and dioxide snow have been successfully employed. All these methods should be applied by a physician who is expert in their usage.

COLUMBIA GAS PLANS SPLIT OF STOCK

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation yesterday announced plans to split the common stock, giving 2½ new shares for each old share. The change will not take place for several months since approval by the stockholders at the annual meeting to be held on April 4 will be necessary.

During 1928 Columbia began to show the economies derived from recent consolidations. The annual report is expected to indicate a good increase in earnings over the previous year. In 1927 net income was $28,265,753 or $5.28 a share on the common stock.

This was less than in the previous year in spite of the fact that a moderate increase in the gross revenues took place. Sufficient time had not elapsed to coordinate the workings of all the newly acquired properties.

PITTSBURGHERS have large holdings of the company's stock. The present corporation was formed in 1926 by the merger of the Columbia Gas & Electric Company with the Ohio Fuel Corporation. The management of the latter organization was located here and the same group is still active in the direction of the present company's affairs.

George W. Crawford is chairman of the board. Mr. Crawford and his associates are also interested in the Lone Star Gas Corporation and the Western Public Service Company. The fact that these two gas properties are under the management which is also influential in Columbia Gas has frequently led to reports that a merger may take place in the future.

Local representation on the Columbia Gas and Electric board is being increased by the election of new directors. Harry J. Crawford of the Crawford interests here, and Thomas W. Phillips, Jr., of Butler, have been elected to the board. Charles A. Munroe and William C. Potter have also been elected, increasing the number of directors to 19.

THE split will increase the number of outstanding shares to 5,368,965. At the close of 1928, 2,372,226 shares of the old stock were outstanding. This was increased by the sale of 375,000 additional shares to stockholders at $60 early in 1928. Holders of each eight shares were given rights to purchase one additional share.

The old stock is on a $5 annual dividend basis. Although earnings are increasing, it appears unlikely that any very large increase in return can be given on the new stock.

In the first nine months of 1928 Columbia Gas earned net income of $20,167,898. This was equivalent to $4.71 a share on the common stock. It compared with $14,967,111 or $3.18 a share in the same months of 1927.

In the 12 months ended September 30, 1928, net was $26,961,069 or $6.29 a share, compared with $23,772,806 or $5.37 in the preceding 12 months.

THE Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation consists of five major operating divisions, each of which is a complete organization working almost independently. These division headquarters are located in Cincinnati, Columbus and Dayton, O., Charleston, W. Va. and Pittsburgh.

The principal properties of the Pittsburgh group are operated by the Manufacturers Light & Heat Company, which produces gas in Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia. It supplies natural gas to New Castle, Washington, Steubenville, East Liverpool, Wheeling, Moundsville, parts of Pittsburgh and to 128 other cities and towns.

40,000 Get Paid Vacation: Family Spirit in Morgan's.

By B. C. FORBES

CONGRATULATIONS to the McCormicks, to President Alexander Legge of the International Harvester Company on their decision to give all their 40,000 employees vacation with pay. It is estimated that a month's holiday, with pay, will be about finally regarded as more and better work from the employees.

Which big concern will be the next to set the fashion in vacation-with-pay? The Harvester Corporation is exceptionally well managed. Other managements need not hesitate to take a leaf out of its book.

HENRY FORD, you are told in Detroit, is extending rather than expanding his sub-line operations and concentrating more directly upon the turning out of his cars. The Briggs Company is said to have taken work from Ford the building of enormous quantities of bodies.

Chrysler, on the other hand, is said to be planning to get control of an important concern having a very large body-building plant in Detroit.

General Motors is already very largely self-contained, meaning that it owns or controls most plants turning out materials entering its cars. The public would be astounded were it to learn how much General Motors sells to other automobile manufacturers.

NOT many "surprises" are looked for at the New York automobile show. Most manufacturers have already announced their new models. One auto is more individual authority than would have been received had the interesting developments been held back for the annual exhibition. The trend has been toward lower prices, especially in the cheapest makes.

DOES Mr. Ford's engagement of 30,000 additional workers, to keep the plant going six days a week, although each man will work only five days, suggest that if this method will be widely adopted he and he to take charge of America's surplus labor supply?

Meanwhile, the un-American seven-day week should be abolished by the railroads and others still perpetrating it. Where a day off regularly each week could not be arranged—as in the case of railway agents at isolated stations—a system could be provided for allowing these men a longer rest once a month. Seven-day work is no longer defensible.

FROM M. G. Stokes, Western Springs, Ill.:

"I am a reader of your column and I read where you said not to buy stock in a company where their own employes curse them. Western Electric stock should sell good then, for we all here at Cicero are proud of our company and there are at present about 25,000 of us.

Isn't that a tribute any management should feel proud to receive?

THE world's greatest banking house, J. P. Morgan & Co., is now being run very differently from the old days. Instead of two or three middle-aged or elderly partners attempting to carry burdens which wrecked too many of them, the firm now has 14 partners, the majority of whom are quite young men.

Thomas W. Lamont, who became the wheelhorse after the lamented death of H. P. Davison, perhaps the oldest banker New York has ever known, has latterly learned to take things easier. For several years his friends feared he would work himself into an untimely grave. He has repeatedly assured me in the last year or two that he has now become something of an idler. That, of course, is an exaggeration, because he still is very active on the job and always closely consulted by Mr. Morgan when matters of unusual moment arise—which is always happening, for Morgan & Co. are by far the most influential international banking firm in the world today.

The age of the three new partners admitted this year is around 30. Each is a son of a Morgan partner: Henry Sturgis Morgan, the second son of the head of the firm, who is 28; Thomas Stilwell Lamont, who is 29; Henry Pomeroy Davison, who is 30.

The Morgan partners constitute an extraordinarily friendly group, with never a word heard of internal bickerings or jealousy. The admission of young Lamont and young Davison reflects the warm family spirit animating all the partners.

A Morgan partnership, needless to say, is one of the most remunerative positions in America.

CREDIT the United States with another billion-dollar financial institution, the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, which opens the year with prospects comfortably exceeding the record total, representing a gain of $200,000,000 during the last year, an enviable achievement on the part of President William C. Potter and Chairman Charles H. Sabin.

Charles E. Mitchell's National City Bank is in the billion-and-a-half class, Albert H. Wiggin's Chase National is well over the billion mark, while Chicago's 11 billionaire institutions, headed by the First National Bank, A. P. Giannini's Amerian enterprises far exceed the billion mark.

SO FAR the Bulls are proving capable of carrying out their marking-up programs.

RADIO JUMPS UP 15 POINTS TO 410

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP)—Report jump in Radio Corporation common stock to 410, a new high level, featured the brisk buying movement in the market today. Radio-Keith-Orpheum, issued with a block of seven shares at 48½ on Dec. 11, heavily bought by the stock pool which engineered the Radio Corporation rise, was lifted by the same interests to 47¾, up 1¾ points. Montgomery Ward, Auburn Auto and Packard Motor Car also were in demand.

Foreign exchanges opened steadily, with sterling cables unchanged around $4.86.

MAIL IS HALVED ON CUNADER

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP)—The Cunard liner Berengaria sailed this morning for Europe with only 2,500 sacks of mail, approximately half the usual amount carried.

Loss in volume was believed due to the order of the Postoffice Department at Washington, which limited the mail to be carried by the liners to those specifically addressed.

The order was issued late yesterday by Assistant Postmaster General Glover, who explained it was issued because the Berengaria was late in arriving in New York, and it was believed she would be late in sailing and the department wished to speed up the mails.

L. GIMBEL BUYS SEAT ON STOCK EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Leo Adam Gimbel, a member of the Gimbel Department Store family, is deserting the merchandising field to become a Wall Street broker. He has been announced as the purchaser of the New York Stock Exchange membership of Frederick H. Hindermann for $575,000. Gimbel is a cousin of Bernard F. Gimbel, president of Gimbel Bros., Inc. Leo Adam Gimbel has been connected with the stores for the last 12 years and is resigning as vice president of the New York store. He is 32.

Mindermann bought the seat in 1926, when memberships sold between $133,000 and $175,000.

Lawrence Cowen, 22, an employe of the brokerage house of Baar, Cohen & Company, becomes one of the youngest members of the exchange through his purchase of the seat of the late John M. Shaw for $585,000. Cowen, who entered Wall street four years ago as an order clerk, is the son of Joshua Cowen, of the Lionel Corporation, maker of electric toys.

Shaw purchased his membership in 1889, when $23,000 was the maximum price, making a profit of at least $562,000.

Frederick L. Yeager, of San Francisco, has bought the seat of James H. McGean for $580,000. McGean cleared at least $479,000 on the sale.

James Norris, of Chicago, has paid $575,000 for the membership of J. Hartley Mellick, who bought it in 1916, when $76,000 was the top price. Norris is with the firm of Wheeler & Kenley, Chicago.

BOOTH TO RISK LIFE IN FIGHT TO HOLD JOB

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Gen. Bramwell Booth, supreme head of the Salvation Army, will risk his life in an attempt to prove his fitness to remain in command of the organization by assuming leadership of his party's fight against the reforms proposed by his sister, Commander Evangeline Booth.

The general plans to leave his sick bed, where he has been lying critically ill for many weeks, and risk the four-hour drive, by motor, to Sunbury-on-the-Thames, to appear before the high council in defense of himself.

This sensational move on the part of the general was revealed by the Morning Express.

Leaders of the general's party are confident that the dramatic appearance of the Army's leader before the council, which has been called to decide his fate, will sway the balance of opinion in his favor, and prolong the reign of the Booth dynasty.

CLUBMAN DIES IN PLUNGE

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(INS.)—A few moments after bidding good night to the young woman with whom he had been going the round of the night clubs, Horace L. Williamson, 65, millionaire vice president of the United States Rubber Company, and colonel on the staff of the Governor of Kentucky, plunged to his death early today from a tenth floor window of an apartment house.

After detectives questioned Williamson's companion, Miss Fru Nunally, the tragedy was recorded as accidental.

Miss Nunally, a pretty brunette, told the detective after overcoming her hysteria:

"The first I learned of Mr. Williamson's death was when the superintendent rushed upstairs. I had rung for an elevator to go down, having left Mr. Williamson in his apartment. We had been to a club after going to a movie."

Police said they found an empty brandy bottle in Williamson's suite, a partly filled bottle of vermouth and several glasses. Appearances of the dining room table pointed to dinner having been served.

Williamson, a widower and a member of several New York clubs, was said to have only one surviving relative, Charles Wilson, a nephew, of Lancaster, Pa.

MAFIA ARRESTS EXPECTED

Homicide detectives investigating the murder of Carmen Iandiorio, 69, a retired city employe, expect to make arrests soon, they said today. Iandiorio was slain in the hallway of his home at 1927 Colwell street, early yesterday, after having been summoned to the door by a gunman.

The murder is believed to be the work of the Mafia, according to Detectives Robert Burke and Frank Dodson, investigating the case. The sleuths will open the safe of the victim today to determine whether he had recently received any demands from Blackhanders. It is reported that he had received threatening letters some months ago.

Sleuths' Pay Raised In Beaver County

BEAVER, Pa., Jan. 5.—County Detectives Charles J. O'Loughlin and Frank A. Weber had their salaries boosted to $3,000 and $2,750 per year, respectively, yesterday under an order of court. They had received $2,500 yearly. Mrs. Thomas Beaver was employed as additional stenographer to the courts.

RADIO-VICTOR RATIFY HUGE MERGER

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—(AP.)—Radio and Phonograph were brought together for service in one of the greatest entertainment enterprises of history through unification of the Radio Corporation of America and the Victor Talking Machine Company.

Directors of both companies yesterday approved plans which had been in preparation for nearly a year and which in effect provide for a merger of the corporations through an exchange of stock. Subject to approval of stockholders, Radio Corporation directors voted issuance of approximately 6,000,000 shares of new common stock, of which 5,777,600 shares will be exchanged for present common stock outstanding on the basis of five new shares for each old share now held.

In addition, there will be created an issue of approximately $13,000 shares cumulative B preferred stock carrying $5 dividends, which will be junior to the 19,580,000 of 7 per cent A preferred stock outstanding.

Radio gains through the unification of interests, valuable rights to artists, entertainers and patents controlled by Victor, as well as the benefit of laboratory developments resulting from years of endeavor in reproducing sound.

David Sarnoff, executive vice president of Radio, explained in a statement accompanying the announcement of the plan that as the radio and the phonograph played complementary parts in broadcasting, talking motion pictures and in theater installations, the permanent success of both industries was dependent upon the future development of electrical entertainment in the home and in the theater.

The Camden, N. J., plant and organization of the Victor company, as well as the trade marks, will be retained, and Victor talking machines, radio-phonograph combinations and records will continue to be produced.

The unification links corporations with securities having a total combined value of more than $575,000,000 at current market prices.

BUGS BAER Says

WE indulged in fragrant statistics of the California-Georgia football game over the radio.

Arthur "Bugs" Baer

And we were thrilled by the accurate descriptions of the inter-collegiate jaspers as they pulled and tugged on the field of fractured glory.

But, most of all, we were pulverized by the announcers verbal book-keeping of Roy Riegel's non-negotiable touchdown.

From what we fail to understand about the proceedings, Roy picked up a gentle fumble and galloped the wrong way.

As the announcer unrolled the ledger of Roy's reversed pilgrimage, we did not know whether our ears deceived us or whether our adenoids were defective.

Roy is not to blame entirely for they tell us that his teammates gave him interference as he dashed rapidly on his retrograde parade.

Furthermore, any football player is responsible for what he does after he leaves the huddle.

As he picked up the young fumble, he was heard to remark "I do not know where the West begins. But I can show you where the East forgets to stop."

Then he proceeded to become the valedictorian of the 1929 graduating class of backward students.

Just when Roy might have hung up a record by scoring a touchdown for the visitors, he was tackled on the one-yard line by a jealous team-mate.

The tackler's name was Lom, another California player, who said:

"When Roy tried to score a touchdown for Georgia, he was carrying both the ball and California hospitality too far."

On the next play, Lom was tossed for a safety and Georgia won the game. But Riegel proved his gameness by coming back in the second half and blocking a kick.

Fortunately, after blocking the kick he did not get hold of the ball.

After the game, the California coach called his men together in a post-graduate huddle and remarked:

"After this, we will play all our games on a one-way street."

Roy went Democratic too late to affect the November election results. We feel sorry for him, but it is the coach's fault for not having a couple of traffic cops on the sidelines.

(Somerton, Ariz., Star)

John Doan, president of the league, spoke of the methods that will be used for the teams to hold their games Sundays at Yuma at the Yuma High School grounds, and everybody in attendance were pleased with the arrangements as explained to them on how the ground would be laid out for the playing of baseball this year, as a severe handicap will probably be encountered which would almost conflict with the baseball playing at Yuma this year, but, with the plans laid out by Mr. Doan, everybody breathed a sigh of relief when told of how it would be remedied.

Rubbish Heaps, Unsightly Billing, Offend Our Eyes

Commenting on a recent editorial in The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph relating to the filthy condition of our streets, a correspondent writes:

"Decidedly sensible remarks, but, my dear sirs, did it ever occur to you that there are other disgusting conditions in our city? In this connection I would like to ask if you know of anything more repulsive-looking than the condition of some of our telephone poles, trolley poles, buildings, fences, trees, retaining walls, etc., etc., littered up with advertisements pasted and tacked thereon?"

Since the correspondent asks a direct question, we will answer we do know of more repulsive sights in Pittsburgh than those he mentions. These are accumulations of rubbish composed of waste paper, tin cans and rotting wood in vacant lots, nooks and corners, some of which are in DOWNTOWN Pittsburgh. They constitute a menace to health and an offense to the eye.

Yet, we share the indignation he implies in his communication protesting the shabby appearance a city takes on when it permits "sniping" bill-posting to run rampant. Sniping is the term for promiscuous outdoor advertising and does not include legitimate billboard displays, which are neat and unobjectionable in their proper places. To the sniper nothing is sacred and he can be trusted to make an unsightly fence or pole or post even more so.

He certainly is not an advocate of "A better, cleaner, more beautiful city," to quote the first plank of The Sun-Telegraph's platform for the betterment of Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania.

County Work Program An Aid to Prosperity

The county has under way construction projects, the cost of which totals $31,000,000 in round numbers, according to the monthly report of Director Norman F. Brown, of the county department of public works, made public by Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong. They include bridges, boulevards, roads and the proposed county office building, Ross and Diamond streets, ready for the advertising of contracts.

This is a big program and the development of it will mean much to the prosperity of Pittsburgh for many months. That, of course, is not the end, since we are building for convenience of the public, but the stimulus to business is the immediate prospect while the service is more remote. So we look at the material benefit at hand with approving eye, leaving the future to reveal the boon of accomplishment.

Pittsburgh and Allegheny county truly are progressing in a wonderful way. "Be a Pittsburgh booster to your friends in other cities."

Large Loss Indicated In Gasoline Measure

The Westmoreland County Bureau of Weights and Measures is out in behalf of a bill sponsored by State Senator John E. Kunkle, of Westmoreland, providing for frequent testing of gasoline measuring devices, to the end that the motorist be protected from short measure, that is often unintentional, and that the dealer be protected from long measure, which is less frequently the case, but sufficiently so to present a considerable loss.

Senator Kunkle's measure was defeated at the last session of the Legislature, but it is expected to be submitted again, and it is said to have better chance of passage.

As showing need of frequent inspection of gasoline pumps the Westmoreland County Bureau of Weights and Measures quotes figures of tests in its own jurisdiction for the first 11 months of 1928. They show 312 incorrect measuring machines, of which 240 were minus and 72 plus measure. In gallons, figured for a year, on the incorrectness indicated, the minus pumps indicated a loss to motorists of 110,389 gallons. The plus devices showed a loss of 19,366 gallons to the dealers.

Clark Announces War To Protect Our Women

Mashers and auto sheiks, beware! That is the warning contained in orders of James M. Clark, director of public safety, to police throughout the city to arrest men who annoy women. It is an activity that will meet with approval of the public and women and girls who are accosted by males who make unbearable nuisances of themselves, to give their kind a mild name.

It is stated that numerous complaints have been received about men who attempt to entice young girls into automobiles. To combat the evil a special "auto sheik squad" has been organized. It will be made up of detectives and policewomen and will patrol prominent streets, especially in districts where such annoyances are of most frequent occurrence.

It is hoped that an end can be put to all such ruffianly conduct, the perpetrators of which seem to have become unusually bold. Just a few days ago The Sun-Telegraph received a bitter complaint from a North Side resident relative to an experience of his daughter. Editorial comment on the communication has brought several other letters.

It is too bad that some beastly creatures who lack the manhood to respect the sex of their own mothers and sisters should make their shameful conduct a matter of such general concern. Let examples be made of a few of them—which is promised in Director Clark's orders—and it is likely that our streets will be safe for women at all seasonable hours.

Tales That Are Told

He Wanted to Read

It was more than the convalescent patient could bear to watch his more fortunate comrades tucking into their meals.

"Nurse," he groaned, "can't I have something to eat? I'm starving!"

"The doctor said you could start on solids today," she replied and held out a teaspoonful of tapioca, "but we must advance by slow degrees."

He sucked the spoon dry and felt hungrier than ever. He begged for a second spoonful, but was refused. The nurse repeated that everything would be useless unless taken in similarly small proportions. Presently the patient summoned her again to his bedside.

"Nurse," he gasped, "bring me a postage stamp, I want to read."

Not a Lady's Man

A certain professor was spending a few days at a hotel.

At dinner he found himself seated next to a lady of rather uncertain age, who was quick to reciprocate his undoubted interest. Eventually she discovered the professor was a collector of old coins.

"I should love to have a coin dated the year of my birth," she remarked. "Do you think you could get one for me?"

"I can't promise," replied the other innocently. "You see, these old coins are only to be found in rare collections."

And yet, meeting her the next day, the professor was unable to understand why he was not recognized.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

There was a prize fighter that was a great social guy after he won a few big battles. He got so good at the dances that he didn't want to go into any real rough clinches in the ring any more, so he just hated to sign up for another fight. But he had to, on account of all the dough it would make him.

It was a big bruiser he had to fight, and the dancing boy got badly battered up in the first three rounds. He was bleary-eyed, and sitting in his corner with his arm around his good friend, the trainer, and he hadn't a word to say. He didn't move all during the rest period. Then the bell rang, and the boys started to punching him awake.

"See here," says his manager, "the gong has rung for the fourth round!"

"All right, let it ring," he says, "Let's set out this one."

Isn't It So?

The only things cheap now are talk and human life.

LISTEN, WORLD!
By Elsie Robinson

Are you willing to give up 15 or 20 years of your life—just throw them away and have nothing to show for them in return?

"What a crazy question!" you cry. "Of course, I'm not—"

But you are, my friend. And if you are middle-aged you have already done so.

BY THE TIME YOU ARE FIFTY YOU HAVE LOST ABOUT FIFTEEN YEARS OF YOUR LIFE—THROUGH SLEEP.

George A. Dorsey tells us all about it in his article "SLEEP" in the December Cosmopolitan.

Time was when sleep was the best thing humans did. We were supposed to get all of it that we could tear off. We felt that it was not only healthy but praiseworthy to "go to bed early," and we regarded with horror careers which interfered with copious amounts of slumber. People who kept "late hours" were popularly supposed to be going straight to the dogs.

As our years advanced we slept more and more. Dad drowsed over his paper after supper. Mother nodded over her fancy work and "took it easy" in bed of mornings. And no one thought that there was anything wrong in such a procedure.

But times have changed. Life has speeded up, and those of us who have not speeded with it are out of luck. We are beginning to count and budget our minutes. And we're making some interesting discoveries about this expensive outlay of sleep.

We have discovered that normal people do not need such large amounts of sleep as they thought they did. Energy can be restored by other methods than oblivion. Sleep is undoubtedly one of the most pleasing indoor sports ever devised, but excessive indulgence in it is just another form of gluttony.

It is also, at times, a form of cowardice. Some people sleep because they are bored with life or afraid to face it. They escape from reality through sleep as addicts and inebriates escape through drugs and drink.

Self-respecting people do not stuff their bodies with food, or poison them with drugs, nor do they dull their senses with sleep. They study their own needs, take as much sleep as their particular systems require—and no more, however great the temptation. They discipline themselves to stay awake exactly as they discipline themselves to stay clean and busy and good-natured.

Dad, who once slept over pipes, now takes correspondence courses in the evenings. They realize that they can get more actual rest from such mental stimulation than from the long hours they once wasted in snores. Mothers over 35 no longer coddle themselves into fatty degeneration with 10 or 12 hours of sleep. They are up with the dawn, dashing through cold showers, rushing the house into shape and then off to the office. And staying young as a result.

What's YOUR sleep ration?

STAR NAMES
By Garrett P. Serviss

"Will you please tell us the meaning and origin of the names of the stars? I do not mean the planets, and I believe the mythological names of the constellations are generally known, but not the reason for the names of the stars; for example, Altair, Deneb, Albireo or Beta Cygni, Vega, Antares, Arcturus, Capella, Fomalhaut, Betelgeuse, Rigel, Sirius, Spica, Aleyone, Canopus, Krugef 60, Aldebaran, Procyon, Regulus, Alpheratz, Gamma Pegasus, Alpha Centauri, Omega, Centauri, Kappa, etc. —Mrs. F. C. H., Lakewood, O."

The Arabs are responsible for the majority of the names—the ancient Arabs of the sandy desert, whose fanciful designations of the stars were spread over the world by the learned Arabs of the glorious days of Bagdad and Cordova. However, many of the names are really of Greek origin, having been translated and transformed from Ptolemy's great book on astronomy.

As the names are currently employed they are usually in abbreviated forms, chosen from a number of alternatives, or single significant words selected from a phrase or sentence of a descriptive or imaginative character. Taking up the names that you mention, for instance, we find that Altair is condensed from Al Nasr al Tair, meaning the Flying Eagle, but covering all three of the stars that form the beautiful tri-starred line in the constellation Aquila, the Eagle.

Deneb in Cygnus (the same name occurs in several other constellations) is, according to Allen, from Al Dhanab al Dajajah, meaning the Tail of the Hen.

Albireo in Cygnus, a double colored star of great beauty, was thus named, it appears, through a misunderstanding, the Arabic appellation being Al Minhar al Dajajah, the Hen's Beak. What we call the swan (Cygnus) was the Hen, and the star Albireo is situated at the end of the long line of small stars forming the outstretched neck, as drawn in Durer's constellation figures.

Vega, the name of the dazzling gem of the Lyre, should be spelled Wega to correspond with its Arabic origin. I do not know the meaning.

Antares, the name of the great red star in Scorpio, is of Greek origin, and is generally interpreted as meaning "rival to Mars" (because of its color). The Arabic name was Kalb al Akrab, the Heart of the Scorpion.

Arcturus is Greek, meaning the Bear-Guard, since, with its constellation Bootes, it follows the Great Bear in his nightly circling about the pole.

Capella is Latin, meaning the little she goat. The Arabs called it Al Rakib, the Driver, and associated it with the group of the Pleiades, regarded as a troop of camels. But Capella is far north of the Pleiades, though rising near the same time.

Fomalhaut is from the Arabic Fum al Hut, the fish's mouth, its place being in the Southern Fish (Piscis Australis).

Betelgeuse, the famous orange star in Orion's shoulder, is said by Allen to be derived from the Arabic Ibt at Jauzah, meaning the Armpit of the Central One.

Rigel, in Orion's left foot, is from the Arabic Rijl Jauzah al Yusra, which Allen translates "Left Leg of the Jauzah." The Jauzah was regarded as a great ruler, possessed of troops of camels.

Bible Passages

"Give Thanks"

(Psalm 92)

It is a good thing to give thanks unto the Lord, and to sing praises unto thy name, O most High:

To shew forth thy loving kindness in the morning, and thy faithfulness every night,

Upon an instrument of ten strings, and upon the psaltery; upon the harp with a solemn sound.

For thou, Lord, hast made me glad through thy work: I will triumph in the works of thy hands.

O Lord, how great are thy works! and thy thoughts are very deep.

A brutish man knoweth not; neither doth a fool understand this.

When the wicked spring as the grass, and when all the workers of iniquity do flourish; it is that they shall be destroyed for ever:

But thou, Lord, art most high for evermore.

For, lo, thine enemies, O Lord, for, lo, thine enemies shall perish; all the workers of iniquity shall be scattered.

But my horn shalt thou exalt like the horn of an unicorn: I shall be anointed with fresh oil.

Mine eye also shall see my desire on mine enemies, and mine ears shall hear my desire of the wicked that rise up against me.

The righteous shall flourish like the palm tree: he shall grow like a cedar in Lebanon.

Those that be planted in the house of the Lord shall flourish in the courts of our God;

To shew that the Lord is upright: he is my rock, and there is no unrighteousness in him.

The Rhyming Optimist
By ALINE MICHAELIS

Dead Summers

Dead Summers come to brighten
The dull December days,
And with their bloom to heighten
Earth's wan and wintry ways.

Through them our thoughts live over
The joy of April hours,
Through them our hearts discover
How love made sweet the flowers.

With vanished roses smiling
To hear a vanished lark,
Dead summers wake, beguiling
Our thoughts from fancies dark.

Their days were bright, but fleeter
Than are these ghosts we know,
And now we count them sweeter
Than in the long ago.

When all our dreams are stricken
From out the book of time,
Dead summers come, to quicken
The pulse with by-gone rhyme.

Plum Pie Conspiracy
By Herbert Kaufman

A college man "with 12 years' buying and selling experience" claims he has been work-hunting for months and can't get a job because "anybody attempting to push ahead by sheer energy, stick-to-it-iveness and intelligence will land in no place worth mentioning." Those holding responsible positions and "getting good money" generally have "God only knows what kind of a pull"—etc., etc., etc.

He admits a time when ability counted in this country and concedes there were once chances to rise from the ranks. But concludes from personal experience that those days are gone.

America, we are warned, has graduated from the Horatio Alger school of success.

All pie is now reserved for little Jack Horner, the fair-haired boy, whose thumb holds a monopoly in plums.

Which naturally explains recent business growth, industrial expansion, increased automobile sales and a constant decline in national bankruptcies.

Influence, of course, is in charge everywhere. Practically proved capacity has been kicked out of office. Cousin Cora's boy and old Charley's son are managing the concern.

So now you also know the secret of present prosperity.

Yet, nepotism hardly accounts for the promotion, within three years, of a young advertising writer to the management of Fifth avenue's most impressive store.

Nor does it explain how various obscure bond salesmen, overnight, became presidents and directing officials of the biggest Manhattan banks and trust companies.

It hardly accords with Clarence Dillon's sudden stride, nor does it give a satisfactory low-down for a red-headed stenographer's rapid climb to presidency of our leading scales company.

The record seems to disagree with the critic.

Classified columns of every newspaper deny there isn't a daily chance for seasoned administrators—for real go-getters,—for reliability—for determination—for scorcholders.

The market is always interested in a first-class article.

If brain goods are all wool and a yard wide, tape line and acid pot are ready to test their quality.

But shoddy and short measure are so prevalent in human nature, and so many men are dressing their shop fronts with mental merchandise which they can't deliver, that we're inclined to ask for substantiating references and explicit data on personal habits and former engagements.

Opportunity hasn't the reputation for snubbing demonstrable merit and the profit-loving dollar never turns a cold shoulder on a verified producer.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Many of the popular priced dancing academies are now under constant surveillance of the police and vice investigators and their advertising is rejected by reputable newspapers. While some are respectable, a large number are merely old-time brothels in new dress.

Their cheap and flamboyant gaudiness makes its appeal to the army of lonely young men and women seeking innocent diversion and thus become traps. The formality of being introduced is unnecessary and the "pick-up" becomes casual.

Hostesses are frequently those agreeable Broadway blondes, smelling of perfume and done up with such a cosmetic flourish and who have apartments in the neighborhood. Their dance hall job is only a prelude to selecting a likely come-on and "meeting him at the corner" afterward.

The patron buys tickets which permits him to select a partner in the first come, first served manner for each dance and in this fashion the songs of seduction are sung. Synthetic gin in innocent looking soft drink bottles is procurable for those supposed to be "right."

A few of the resorts are believed to be depots for the procuress and white slaver and many disappearing girls who wind up in the bagnios of Rio have reported their plight due to such contacts. While several are in the Broadway regions, the larger number thrive on the lower East Side.

They provide an agreeable rendezvous for dope runners and gigolos who specialize in living off women. Almost every evening there are gentlemen homeward bound from a banquet who drop in "just for a lark." But when they search frantically for their wallets later, do not find life so all fired "larkish."

The dance halls are not alone in exploiting such camouflage for vice. There are any number of massage parlors belonging in the same category. They are adroit in placing subtle advertisements in such publications that will accept them.

Diamonds have for a time been something of a drug on the market. The craze for modernistic designs in jewelry and a few other faddish innovations brought on the temporary slump. And there is little doubt the superb imitations of diamonds, done with such rare artistry lately, had an effect. They were not such an unfailing symbol of wealth. Style experts say, however, the pendulum is swinging back and diamonds will not only be more popular than ever but much higher priced.

The heaviest buyers of diamonds, excluding the very rich, are people of the stage and movies. Aside from advertising value for stars, it is their way of providing for the rainy day. A diamond usually has a fair market value and may be quickly converted into cash.

Yet I do not believe a man lives, not even Jules Gleanzer, who has not at some time or other posed as something he was not. OH, THESE WOMEN
By Leola Allard

A society woman of Chicago hired a poor little French dressmaker, whose life is pretty much of a problem, having a baby and a sick husband, to make her some clothes. The modiste, being short of funds, worked cheaply and expertly, turning out gowns that would cost the woman a fancy sum in any shop.

The poor little dressmaker is still crying for her $50 and will never get it.

Another girl had a dress made and it cost $15 for the making. The same French modiste who had to give up a better paid job sewed at home because she had a baby to care for. The girl made her shop at four or five stores to get just what she wanted, taking much of her time, which was NOT paid for, and the dressmaker did NOT get her $15. She has tried every other way, and now she is consulting the legal aid society, because she needs money.

Can you imagine going to a party and enjoying yourself in a dress you got that way?

Neither can I.

A New York bacteriologist and pianist, man and wife, have been married for many years and arise to remark that they have found that the way to be happily married is to live next door to each other, and not in the same house. Few of their friends are mutual and they "socialize separately," they say.

If you doubt that women have rights, think of "socializing separately," as a substitute for the old fashioned "love, honor and obey." Then walk down one of the avenues, and see the happy men at their clubs, reading the papers in their big red velvet chairs by the windows, and suporting only themselves.

Separate socializing arrangements are made by women after marriage.

A young woman suffering her way through a painful "day-after" says that it must have been before the speakeasy days that some optimist remarked: "To the pure all things are pure." She said what she drank would wither a lily.

ONCE OVERS
By J. J. Mundy

Keep your chin up.

You will never get anywhere if it drops on your chest.

So long as your chin is where it should be you are not defeated seriously no matter how much involved.

So long as your chin is up you still show a fighting spirit and it is a fighting spirit that the world admires.

To drop your chin is to advertise to the world that you are defeated.

There can be no confidence in a man who owns he is licked.

The man who admits defeat is not wanted anywhere.

His friends lose confidence in him, others pity him and that is not a condition which leads to success impressions.

The world wants those who look and act successful and full of vigor.

You can't be vigorous with your chin down.

You can't convince anyone that you are a good financial or physical risk unless you indicate that you have an aggressive spirit and energy enough to carry it on.

Then up with your chin and eyes straight ahead—to the goal.

Have an object and don't let little drawbacks discourage you.
